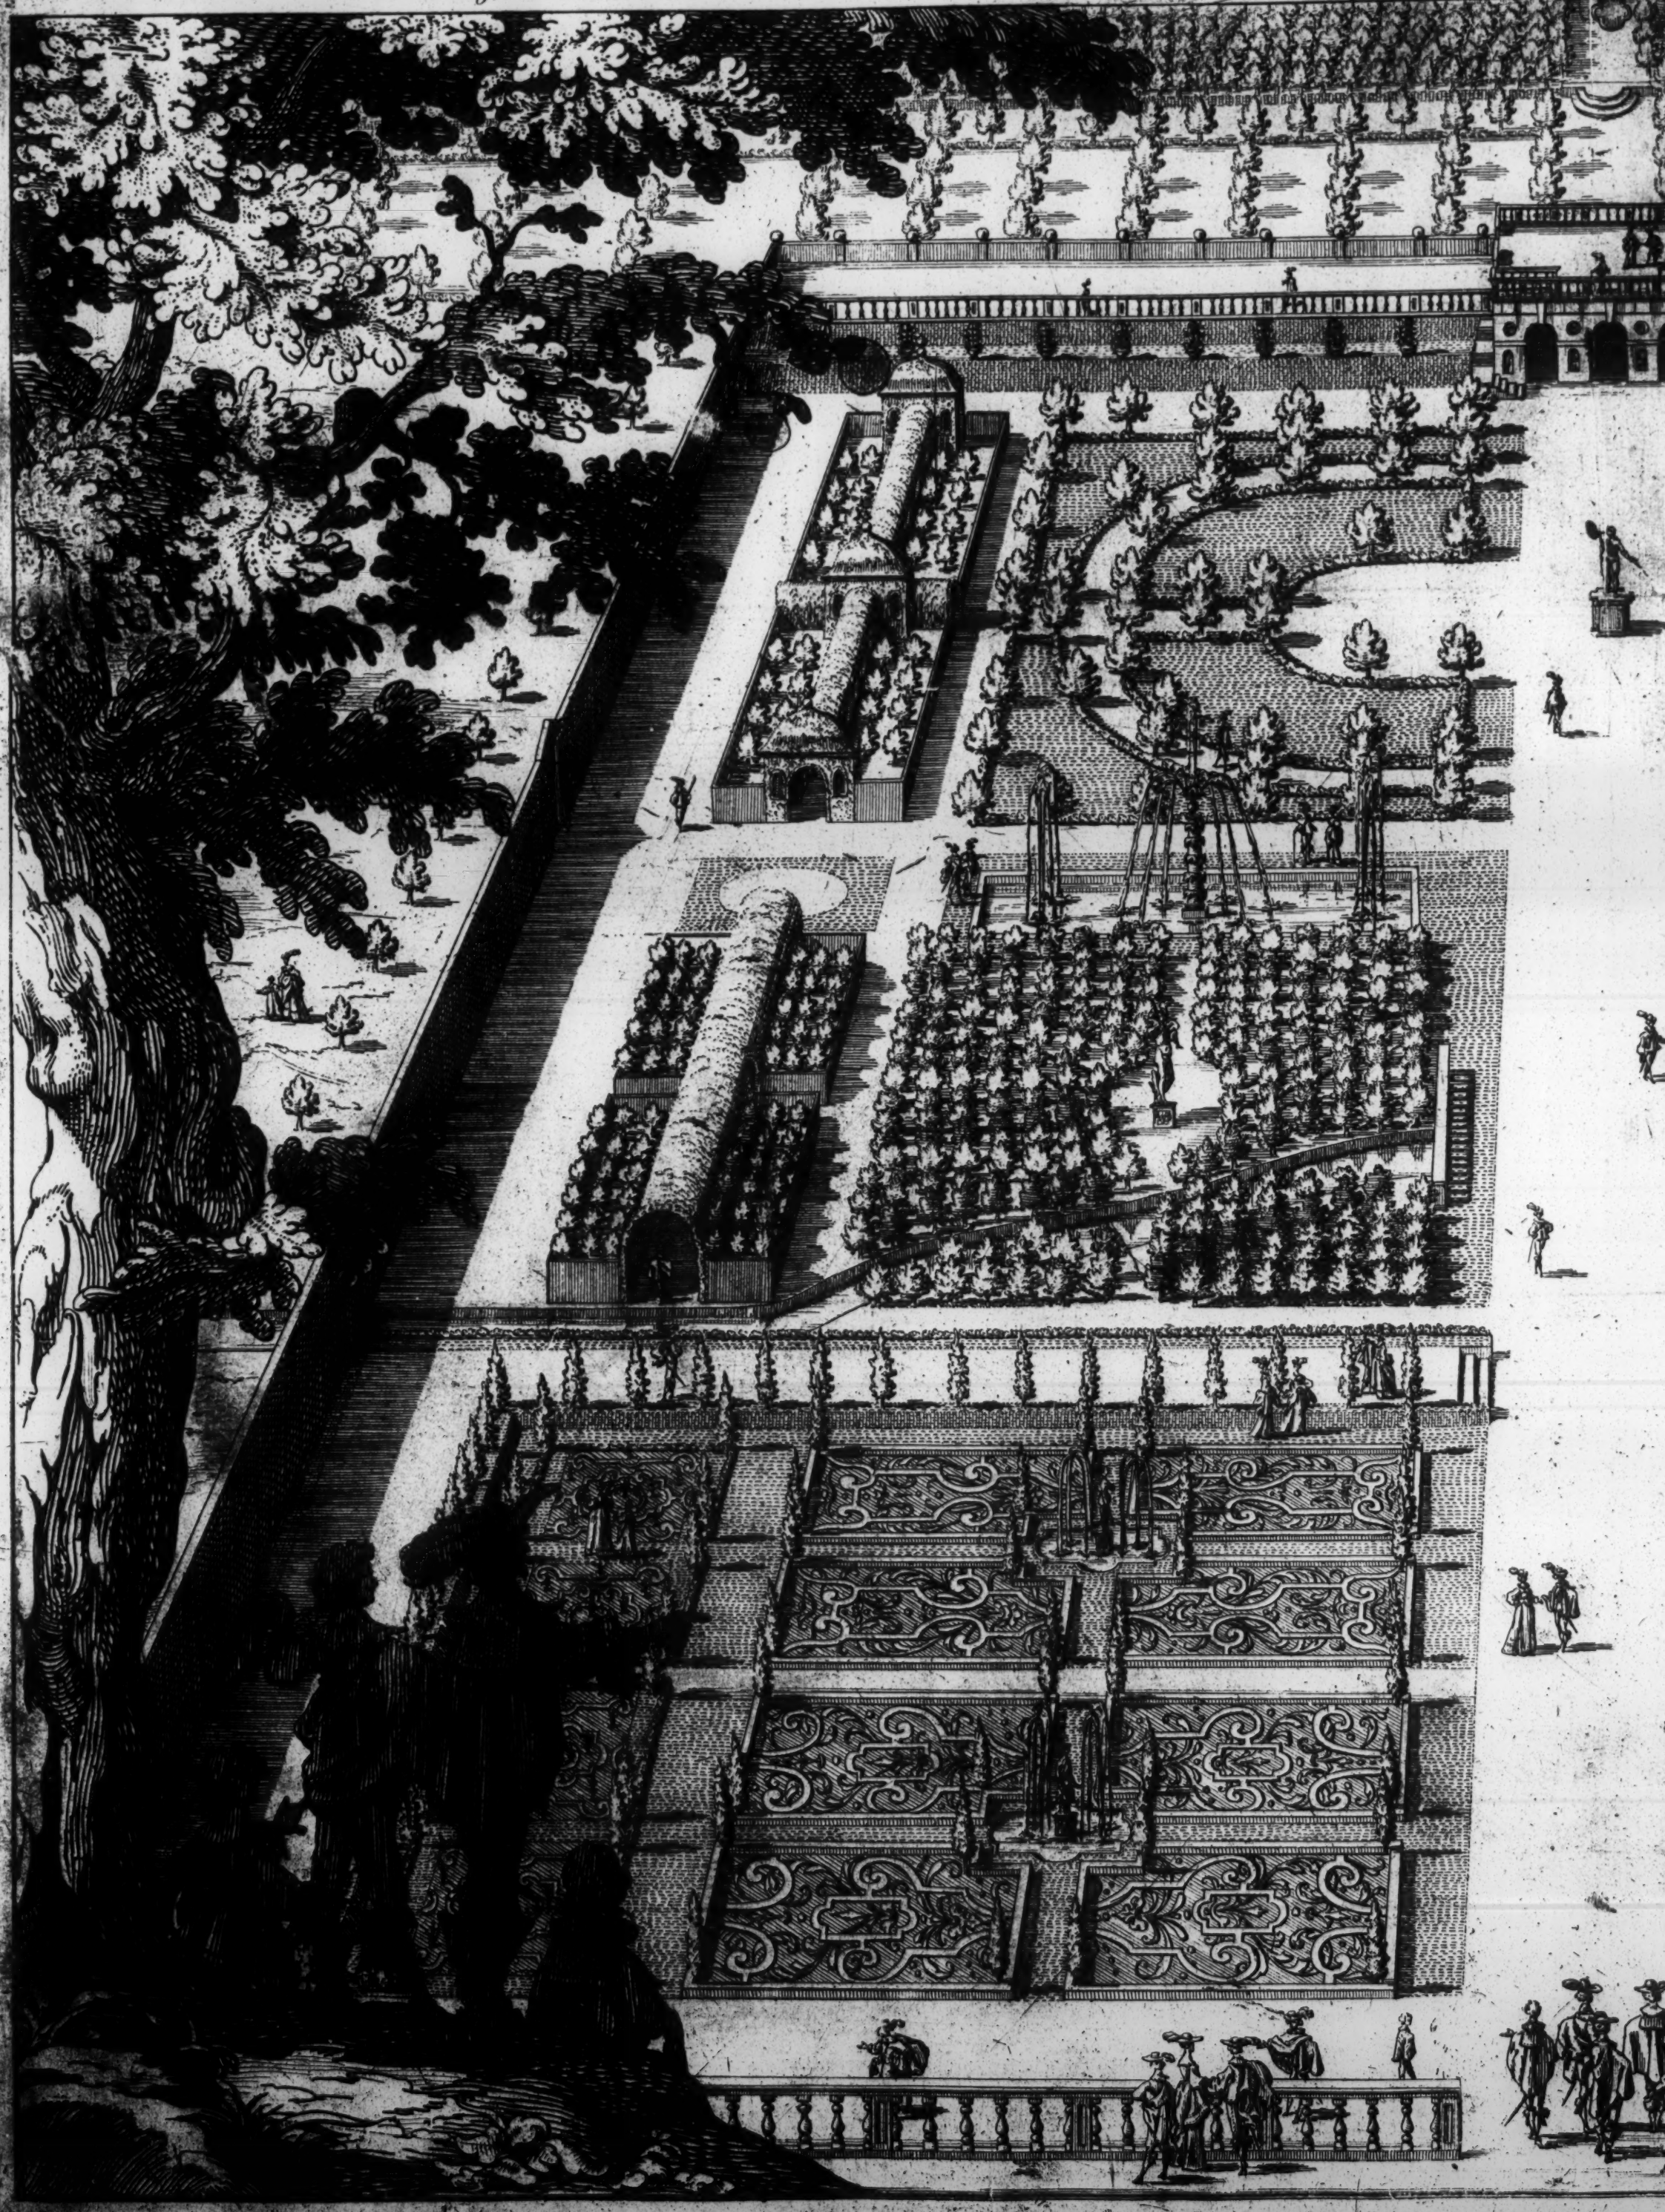
HORTVS PENBR

Le Jardin de Wuillton, Construict Par Tres noble et tres Puissant Seigneur PHILIPPE COMTE DE PENBROOKE Churland, gardien de lestanerie aux Contez de Cornuall et deuon Chamberlain de la Maison du Roy, Cheualier Conceiller du Conceill Priue' de sa Majeste' &



ET MONGOMERI Baron harbert de Cardif, Seigneur Latt et Rosse de Candall, Marmion, St quentin, et du tres noble ordre de la Jartiere Lieutenant general pour le Roy aux prouinces de Vuillts somersett, et kent.
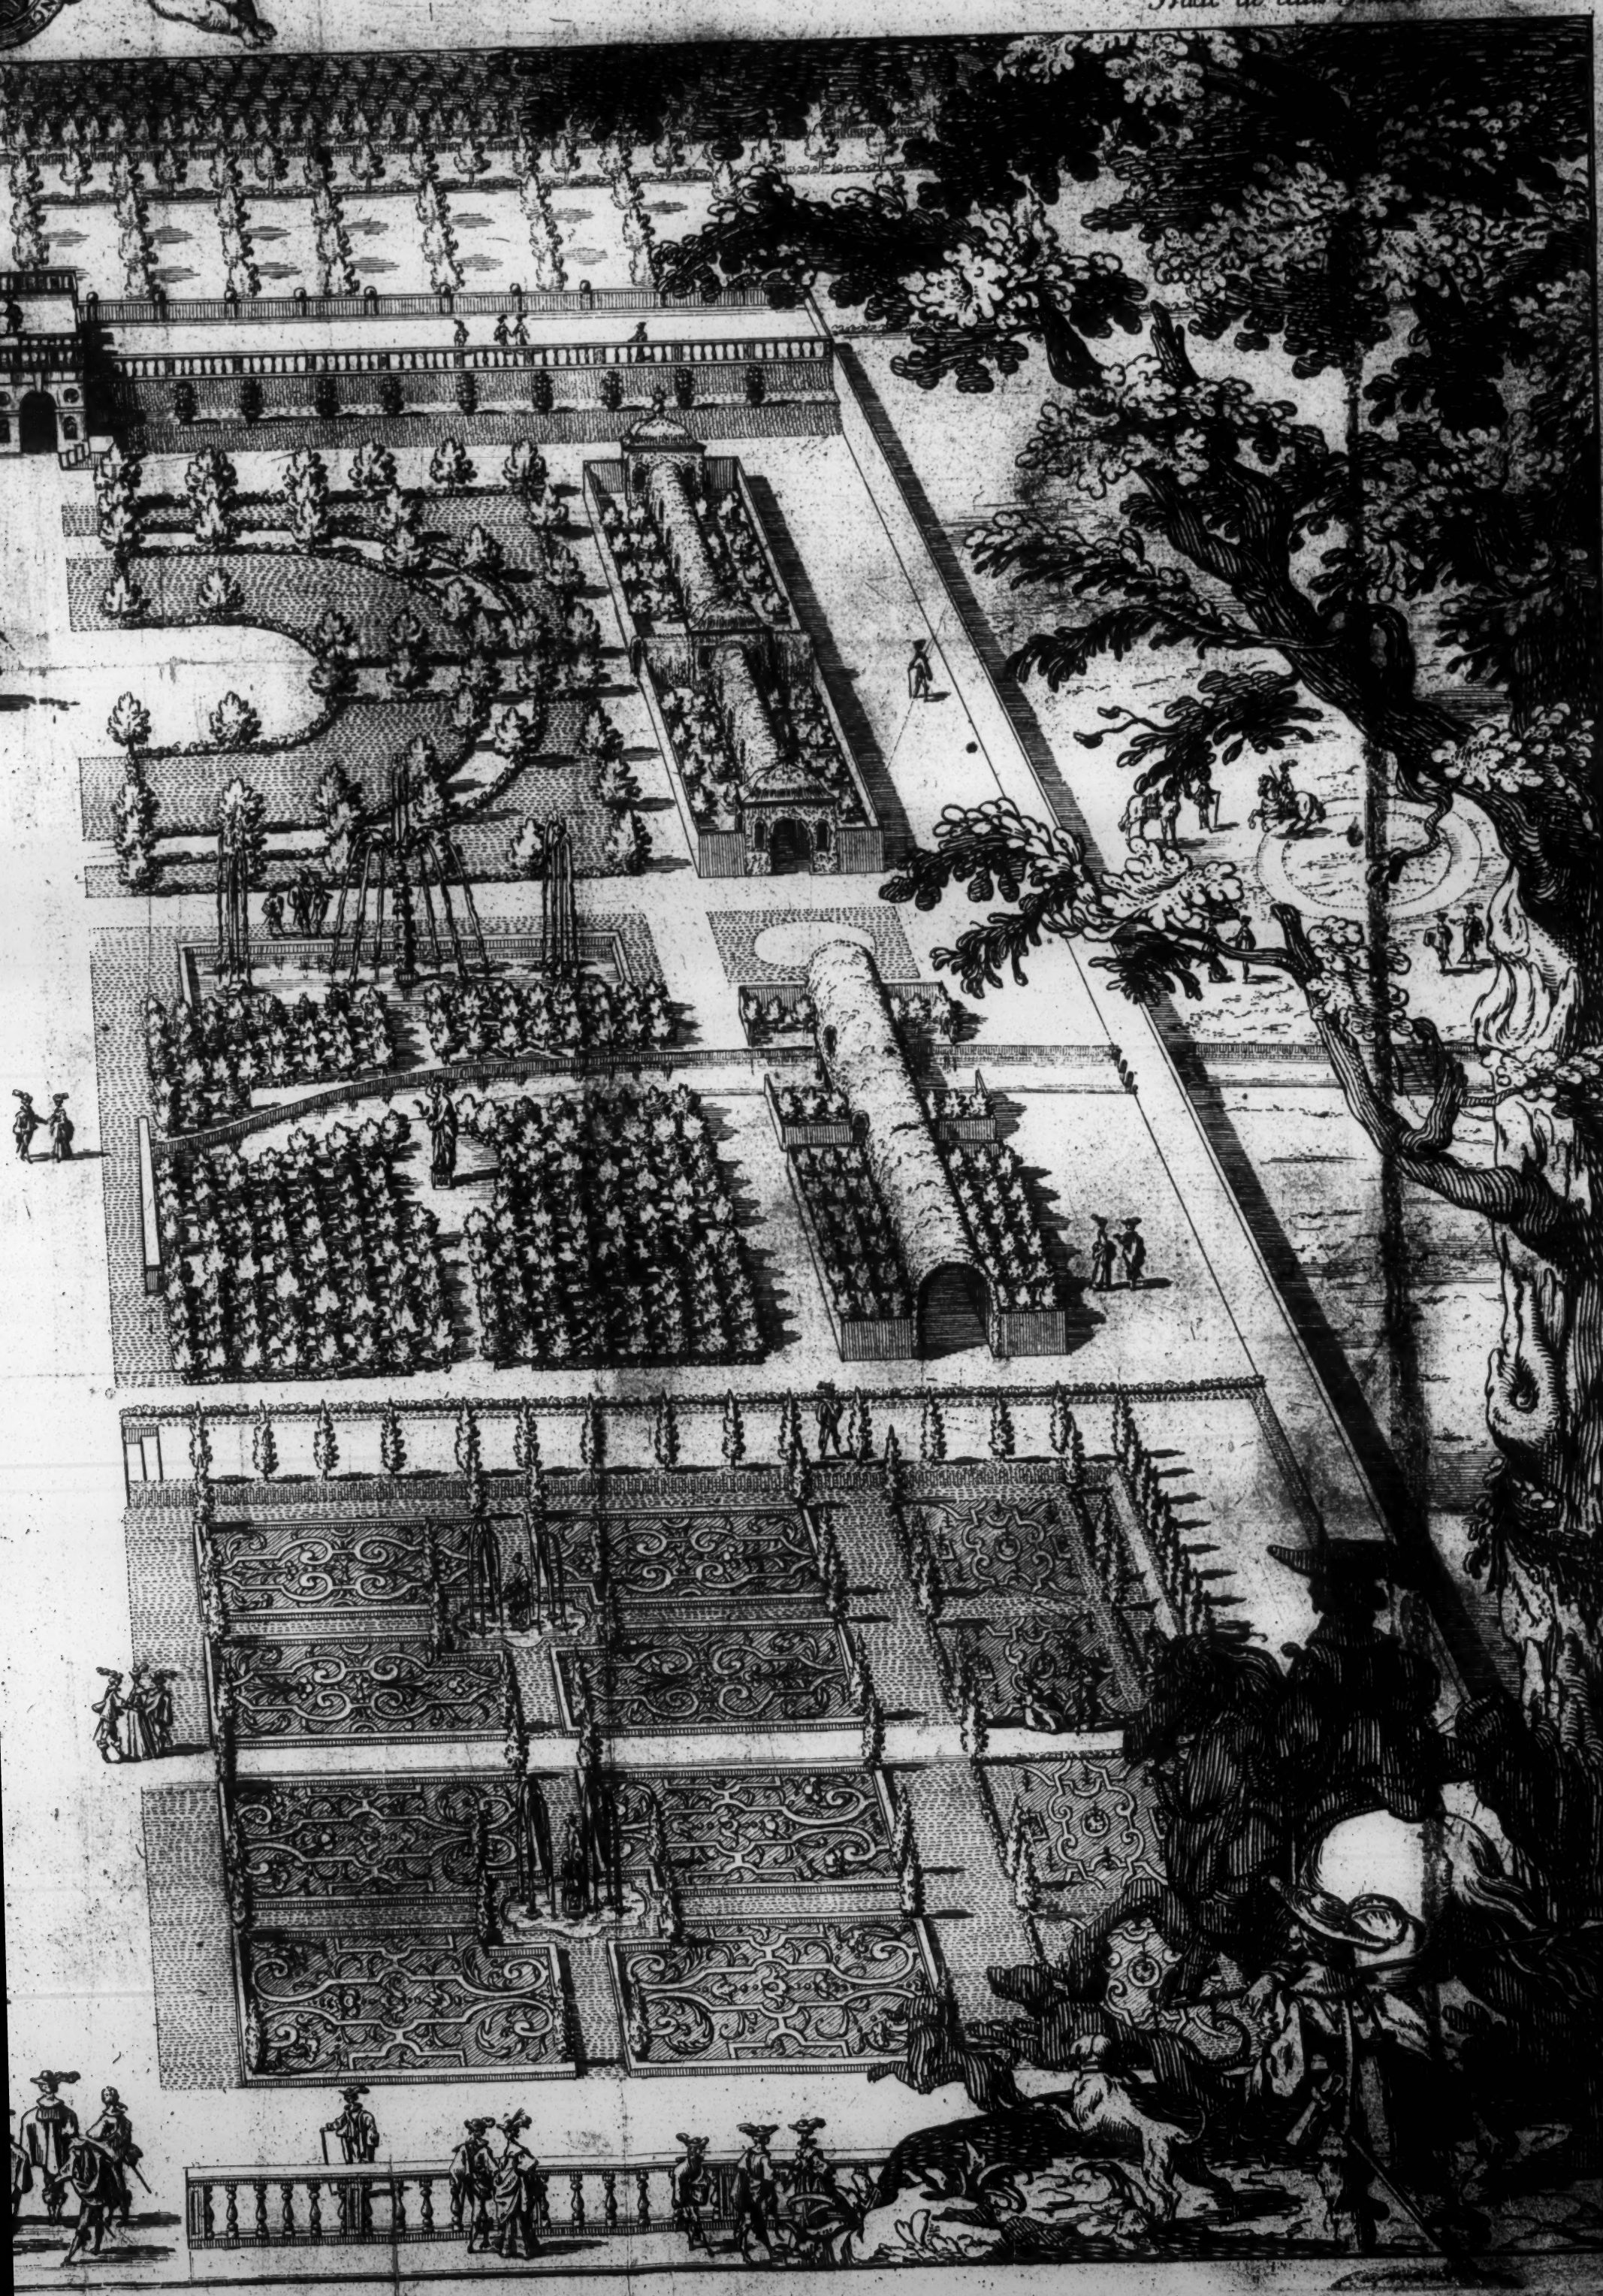
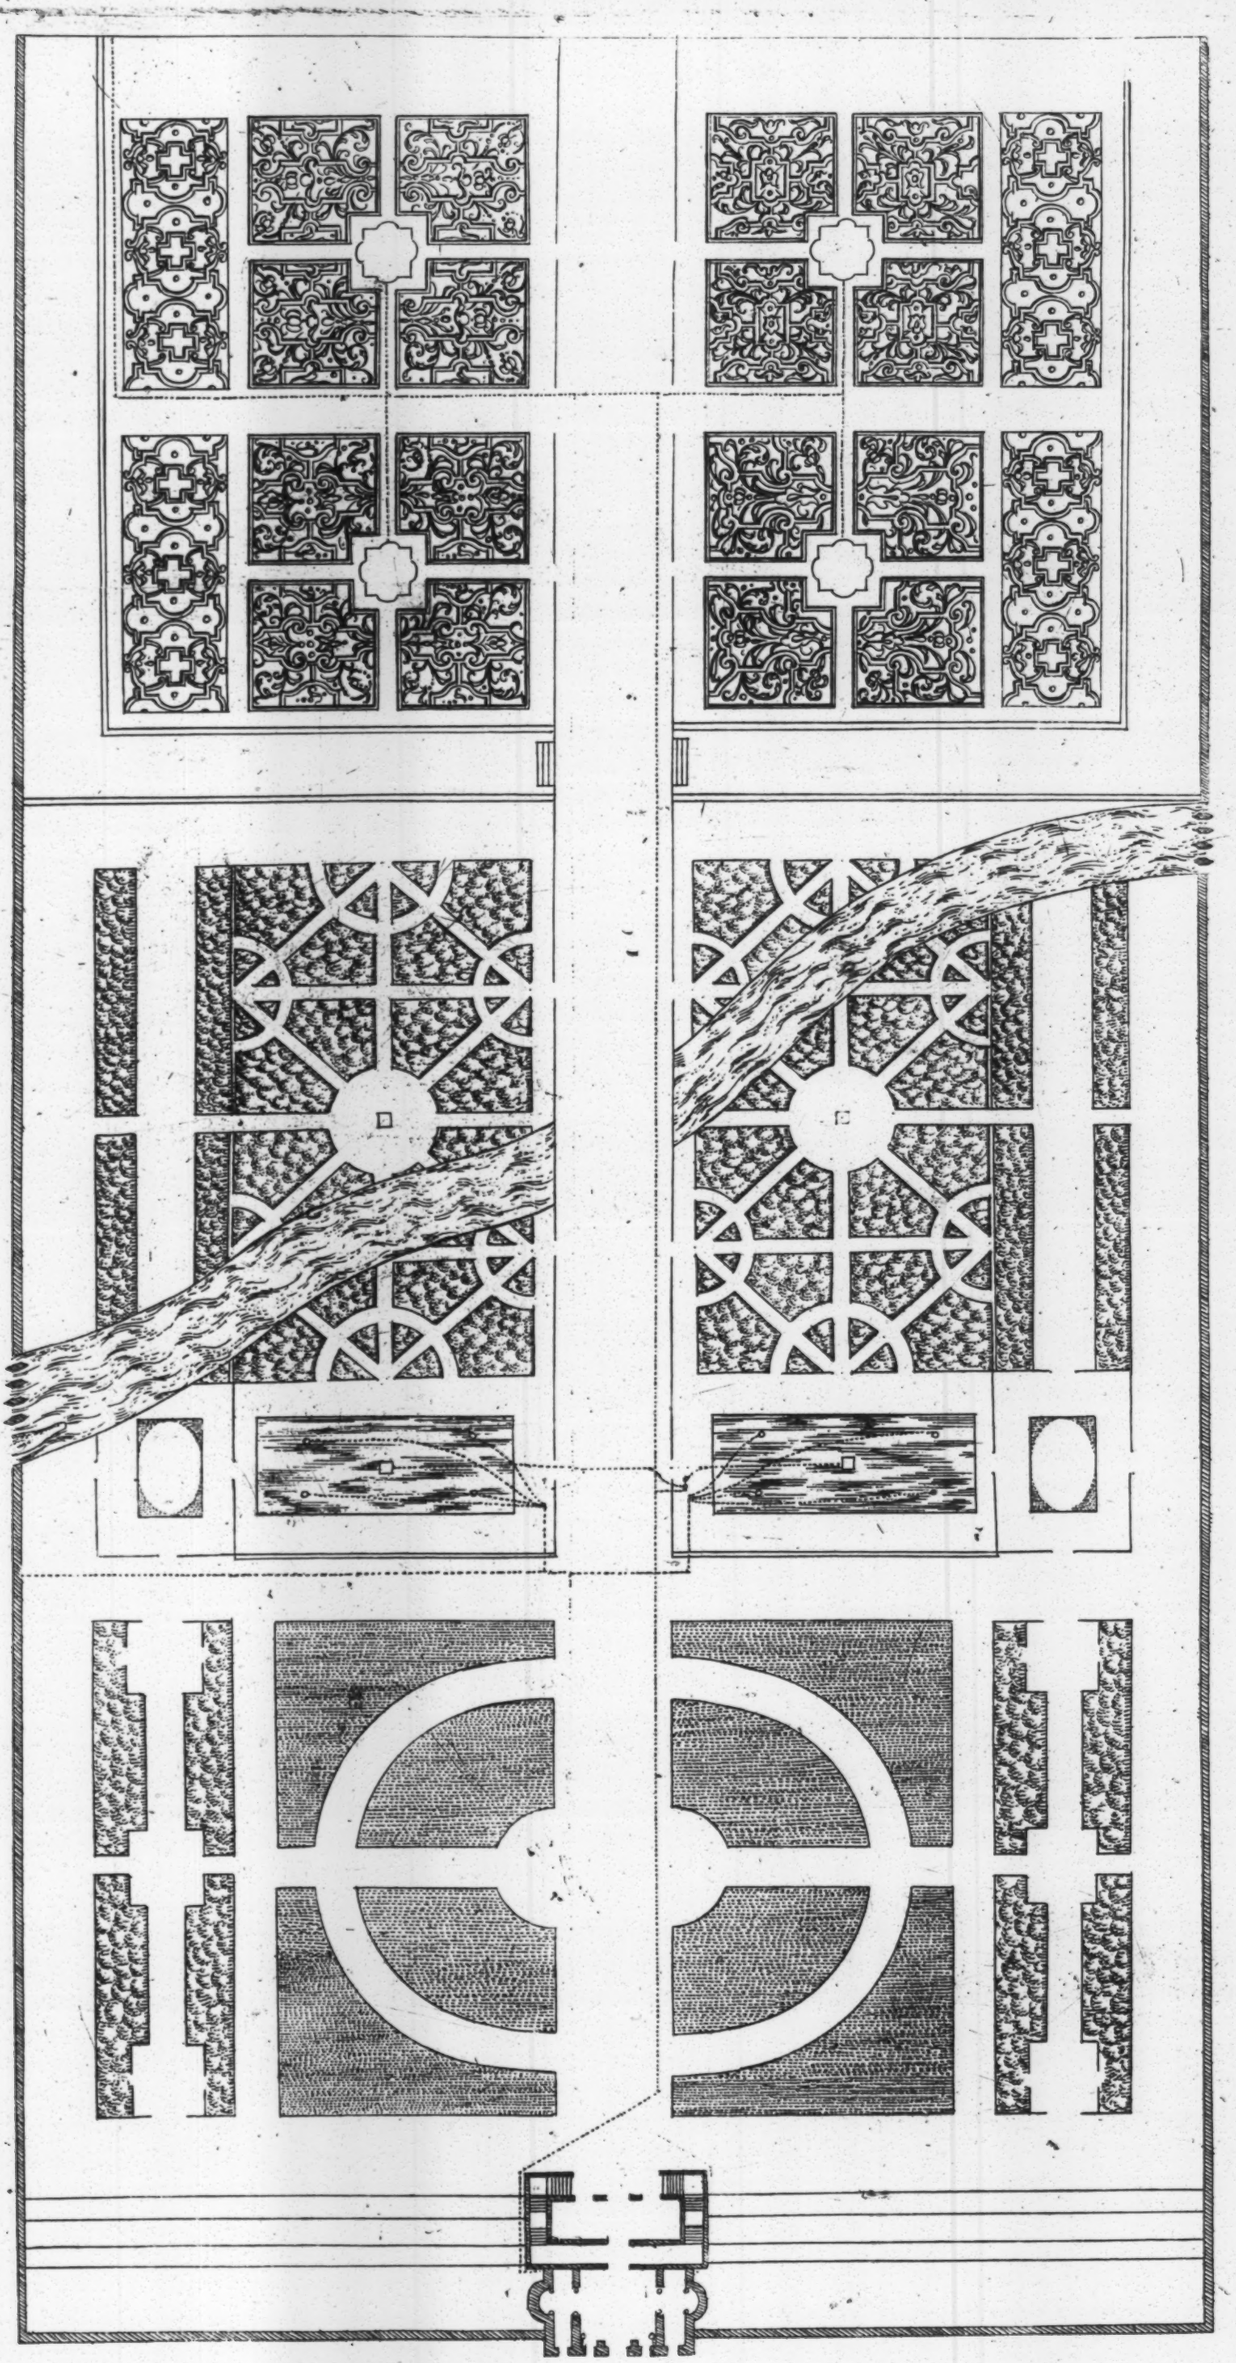
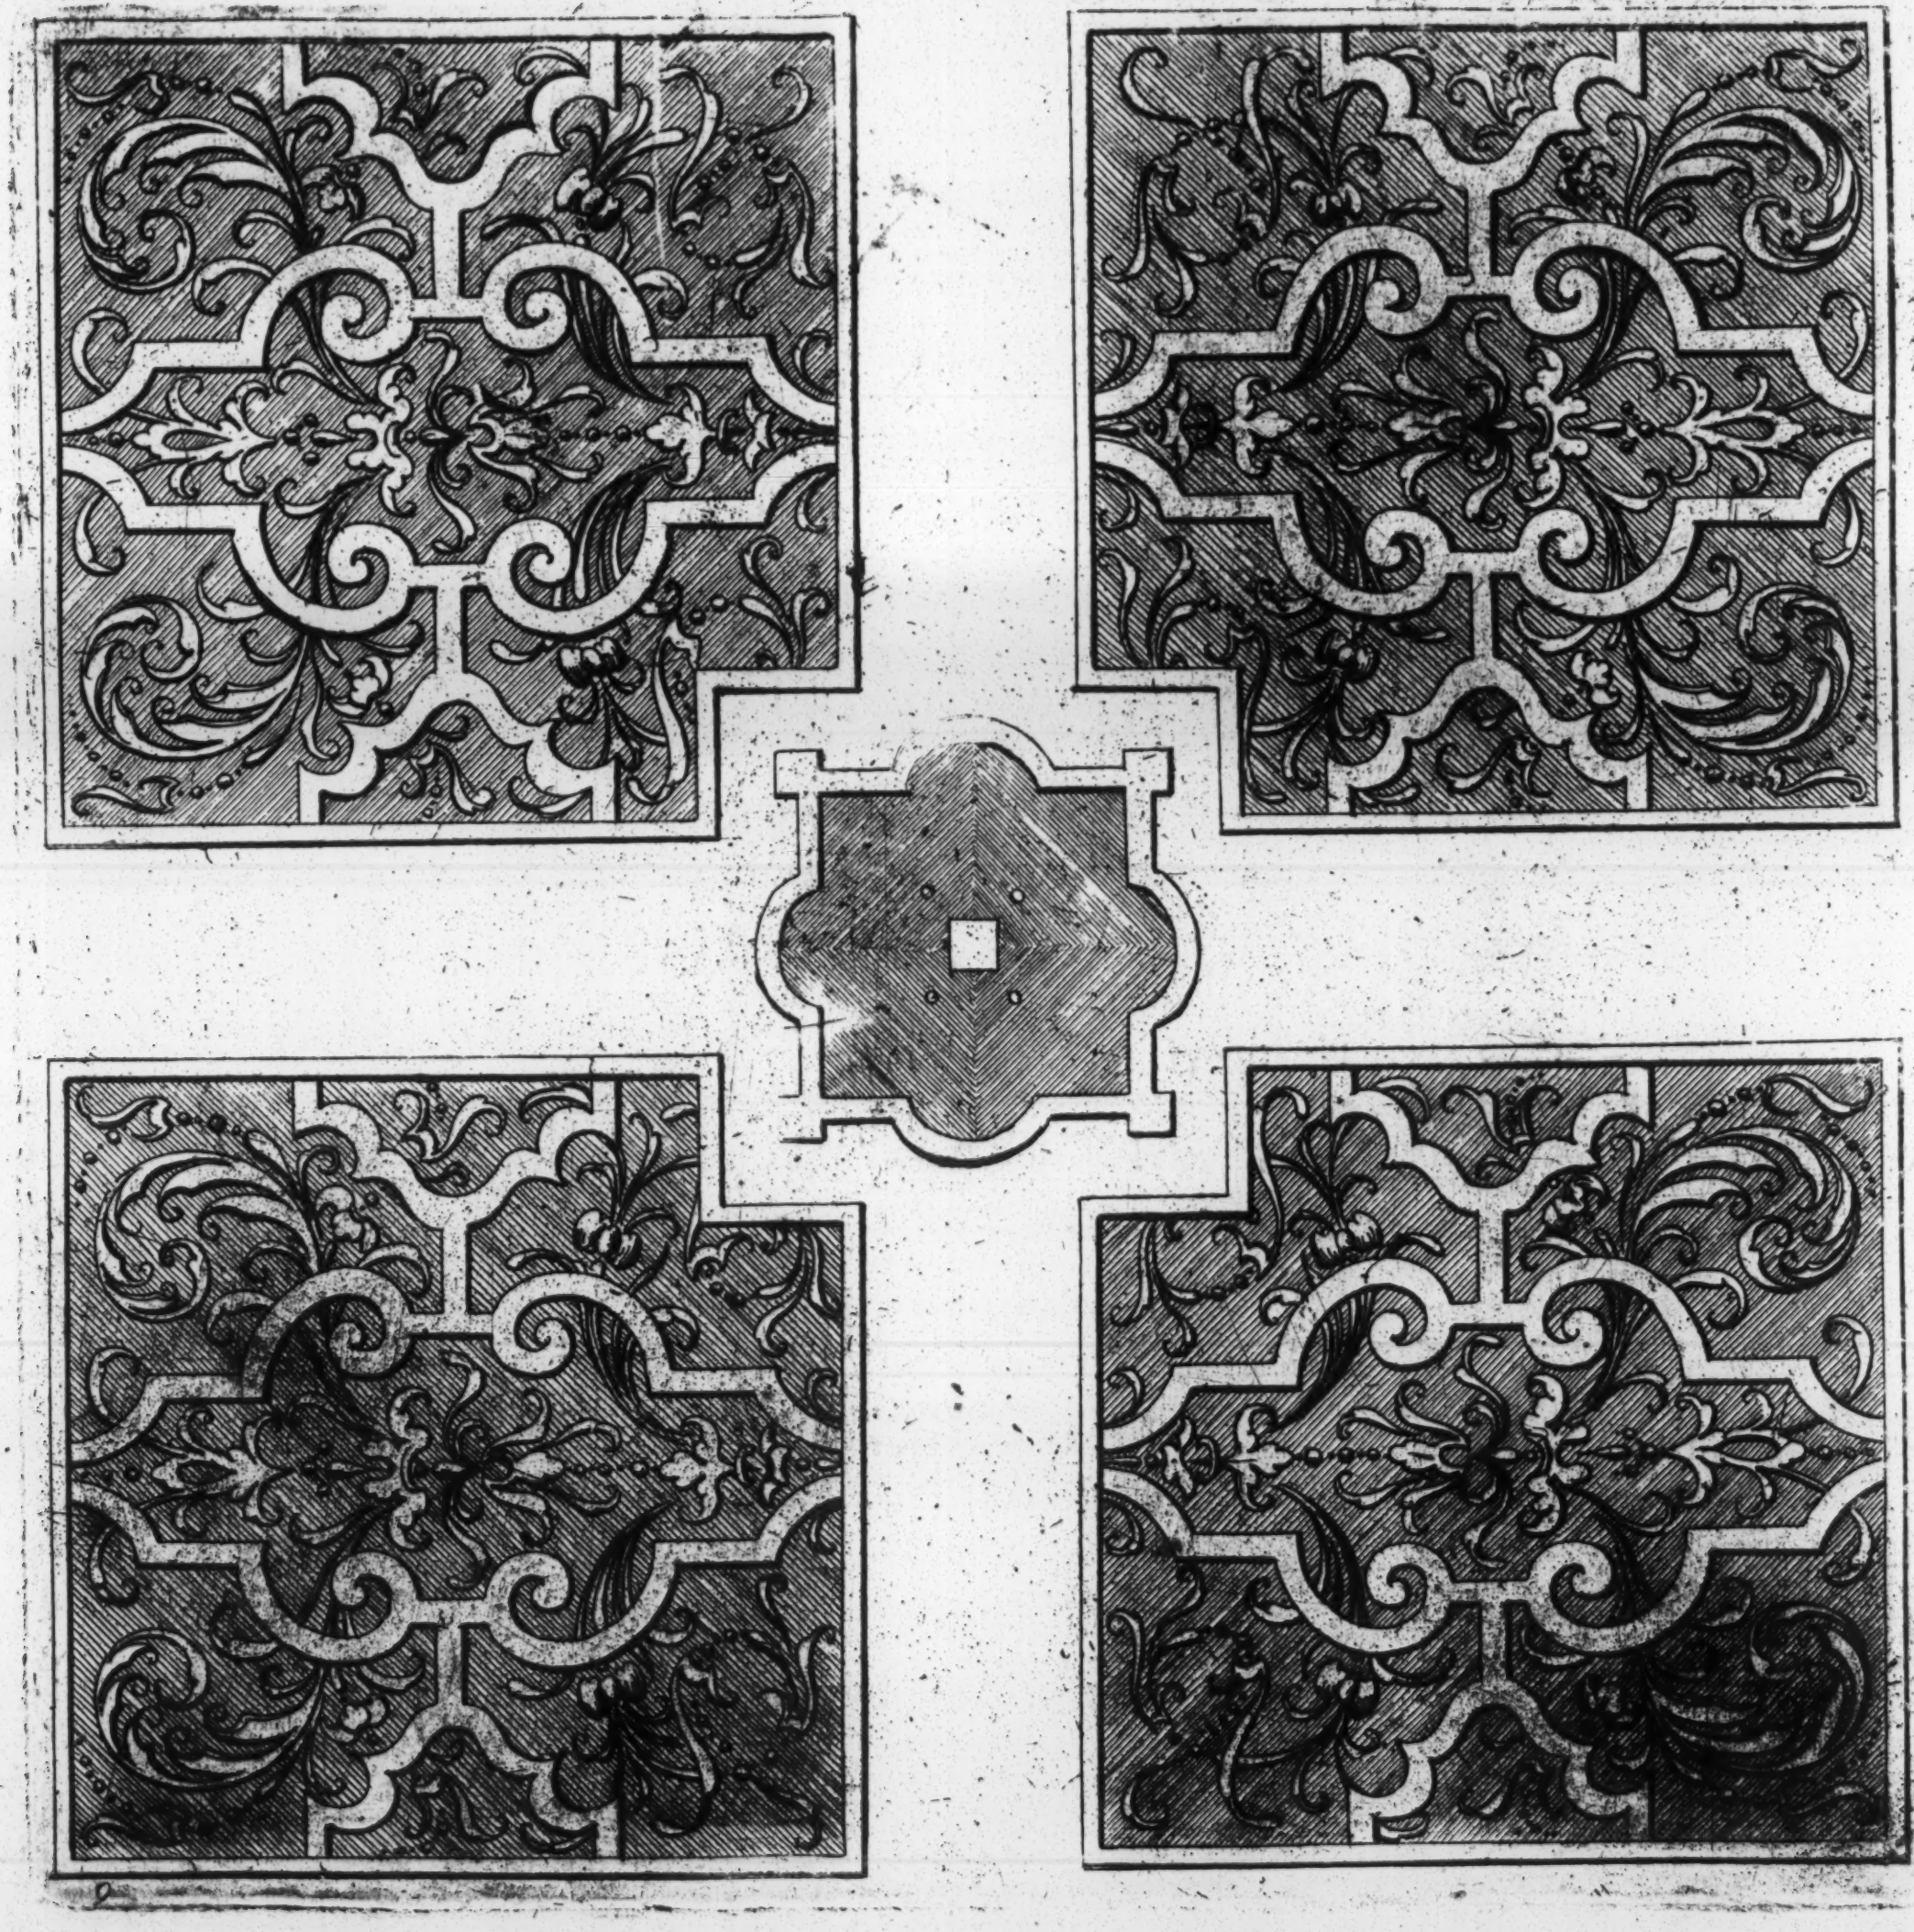
Isaac de caus Inuent

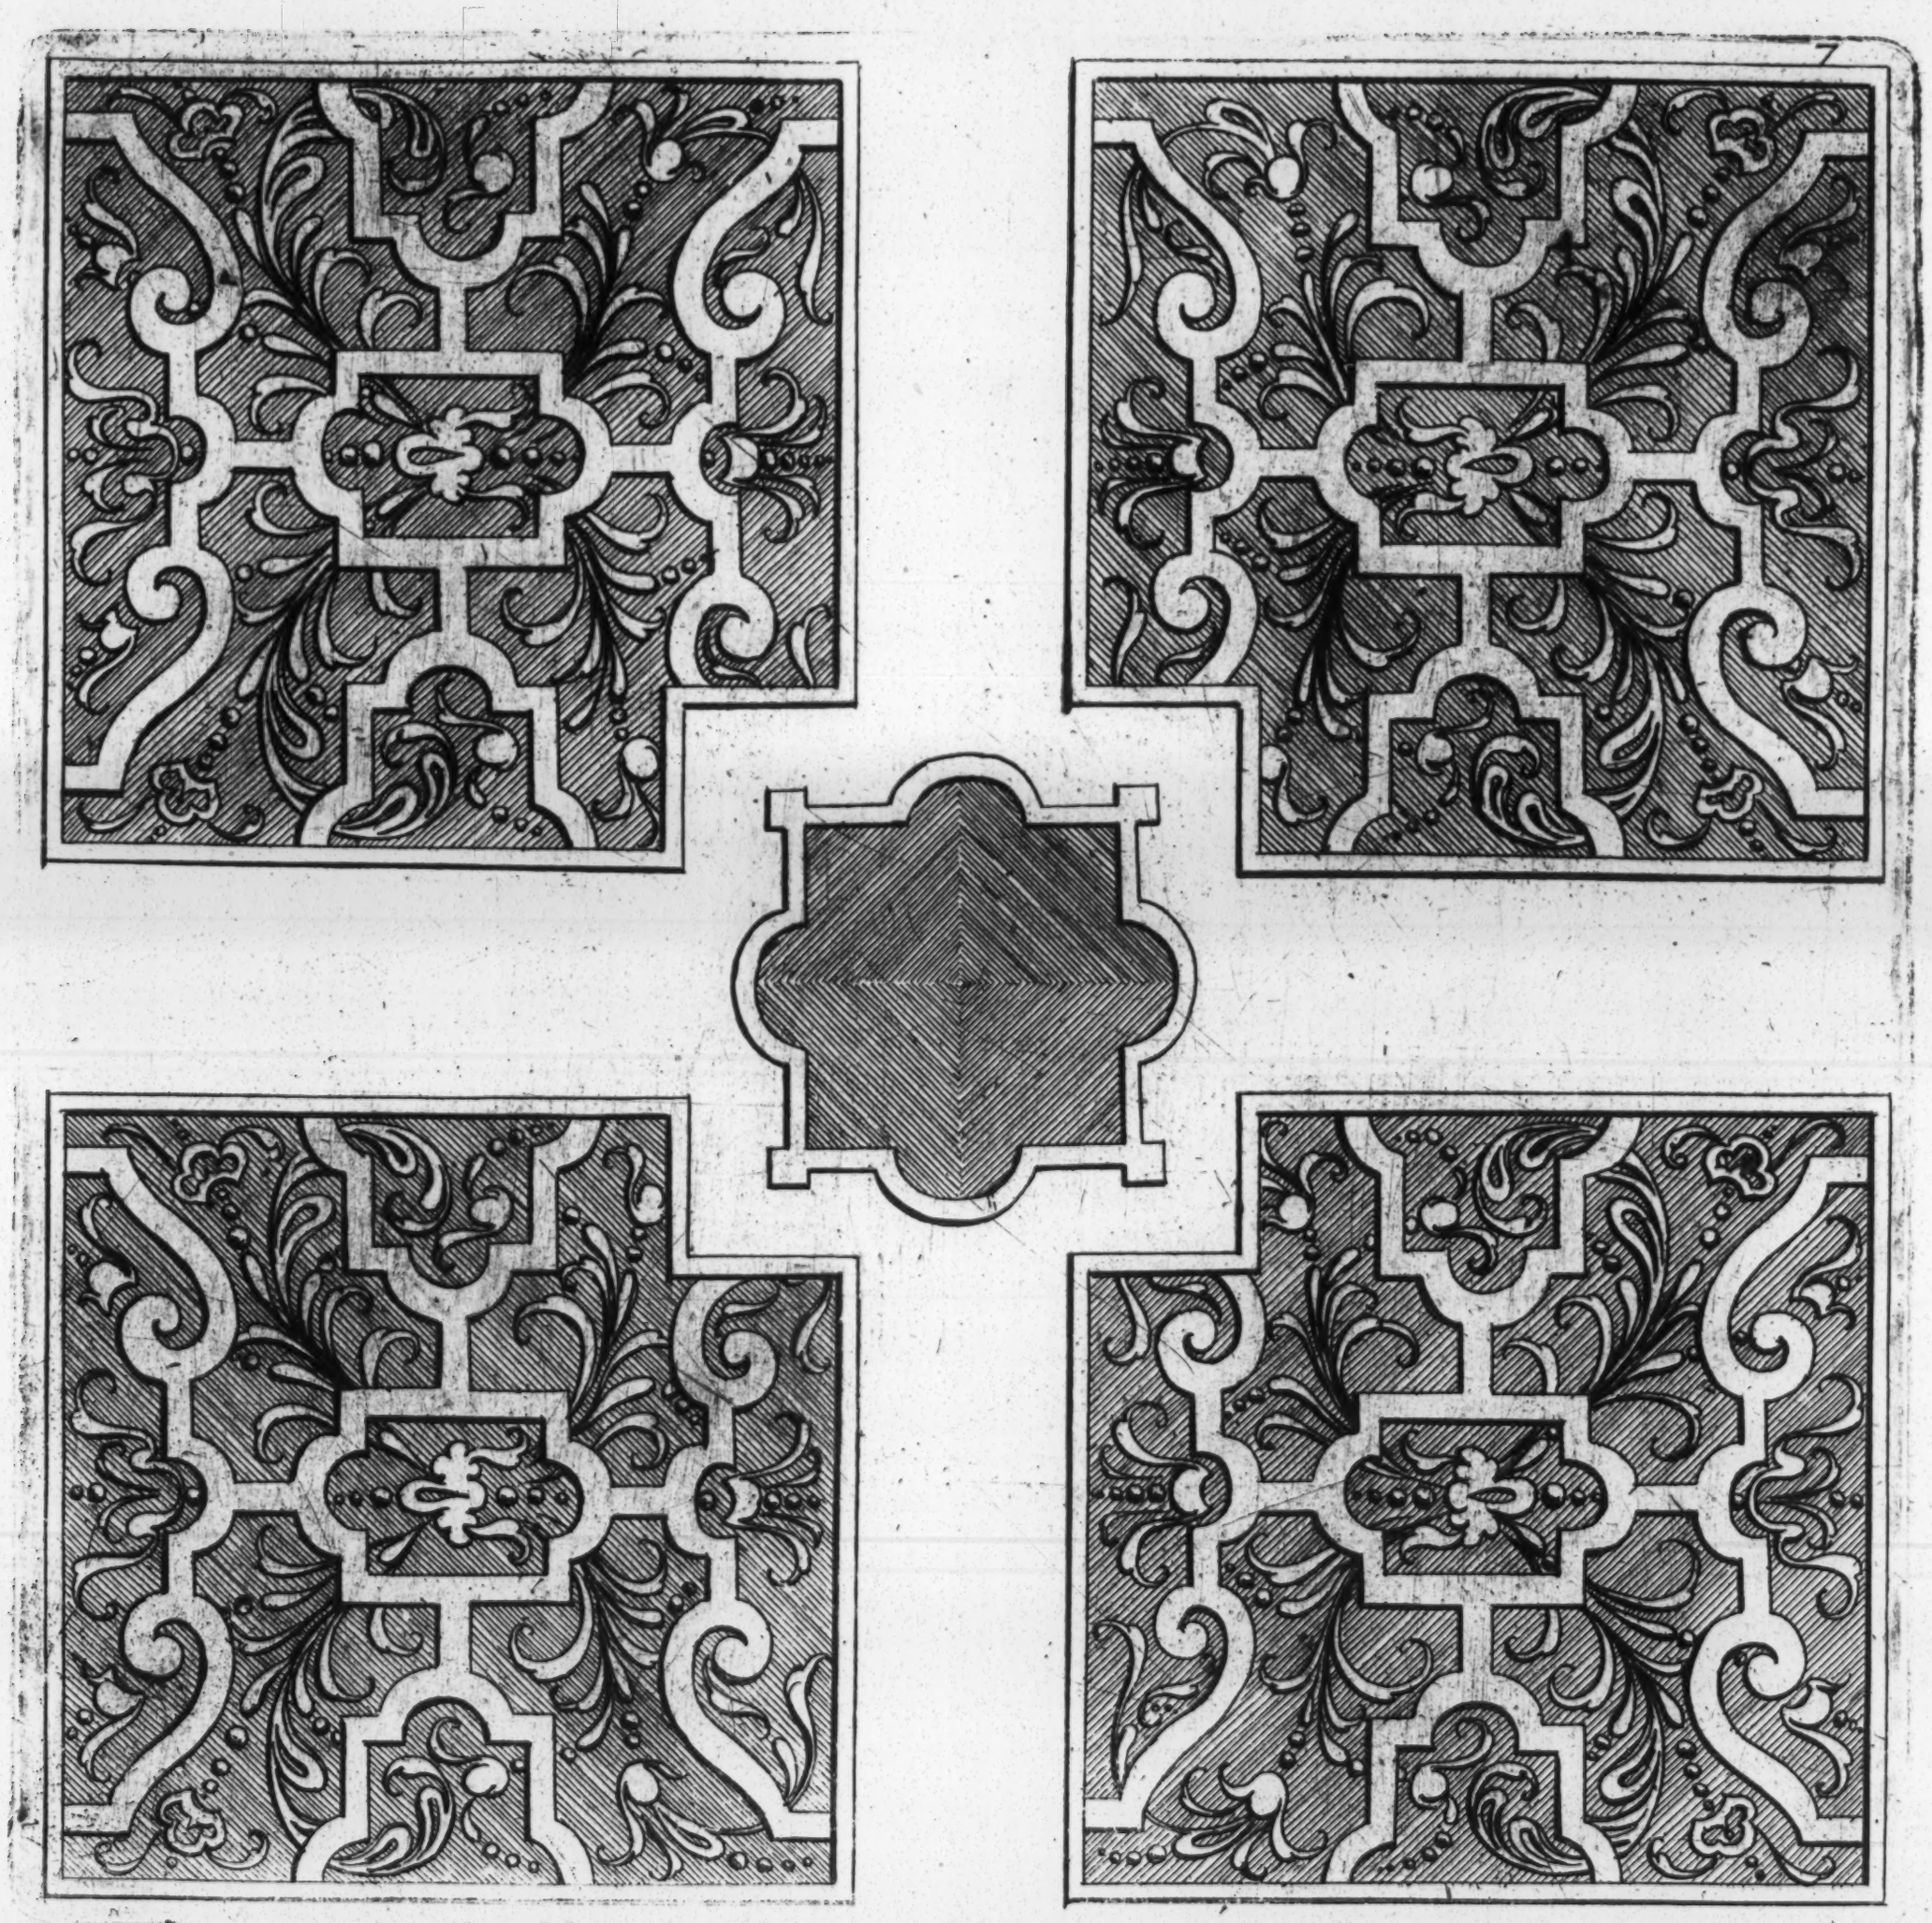


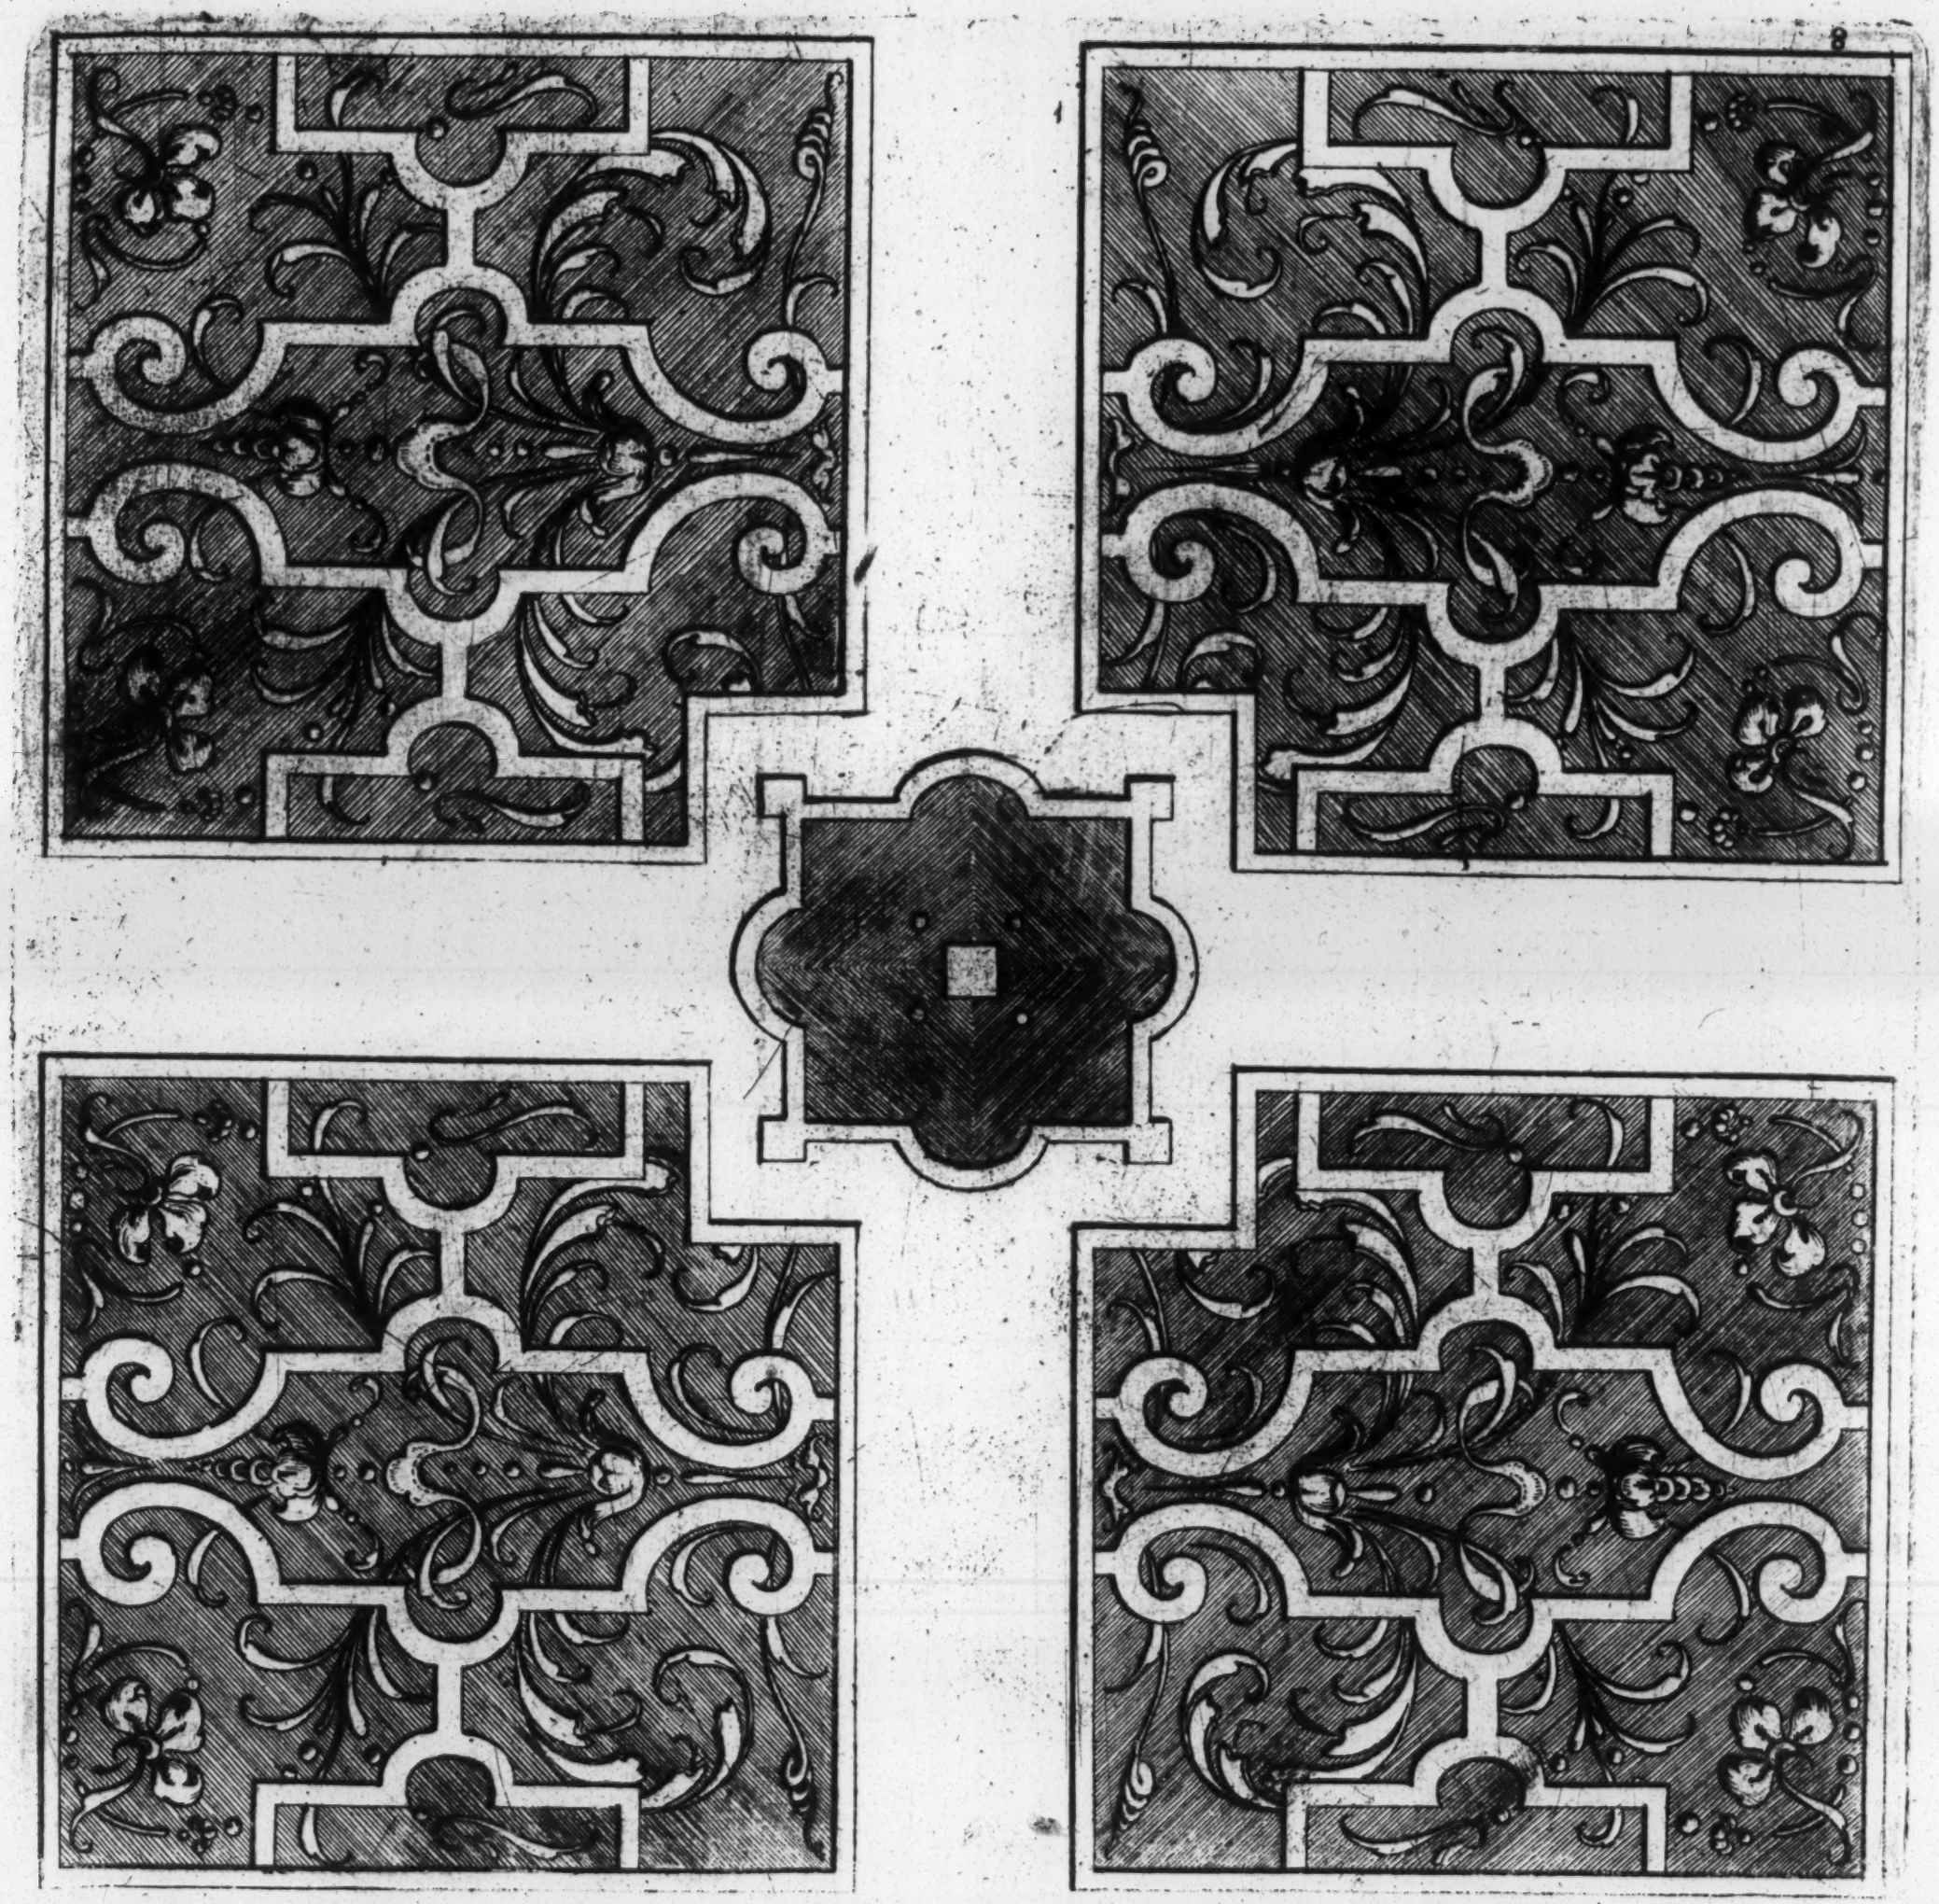


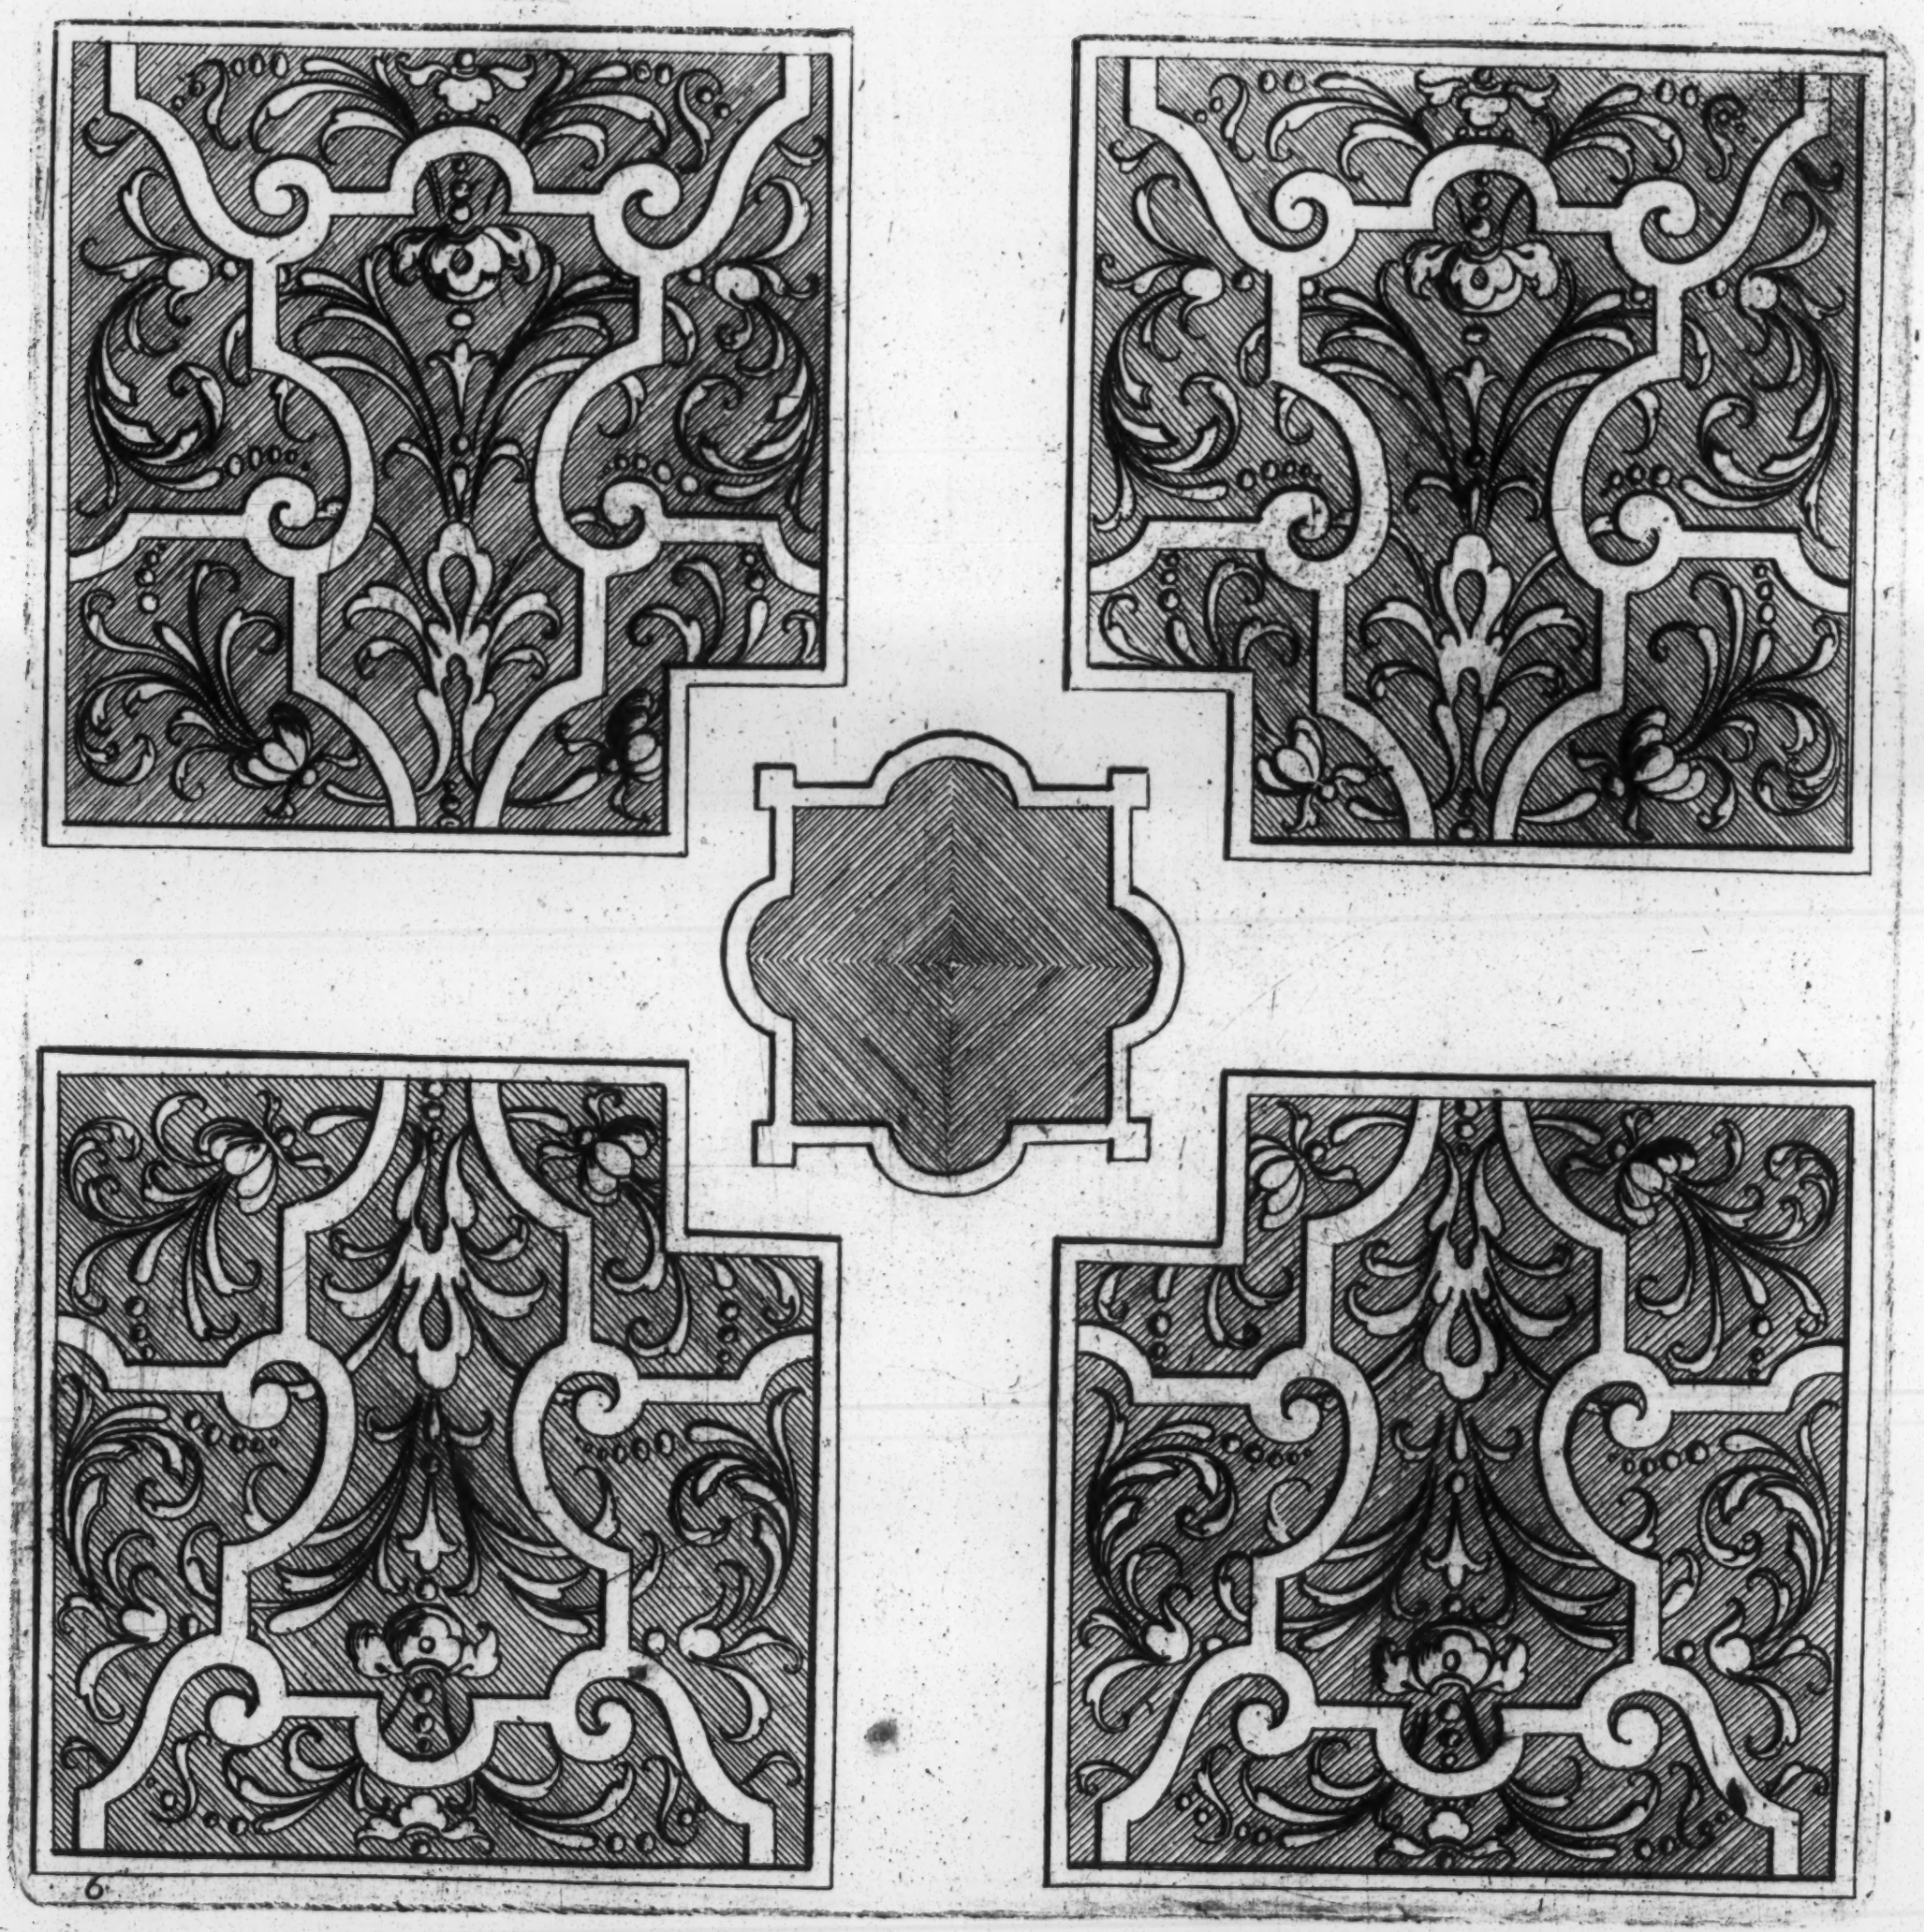
Isaac de Caus
K

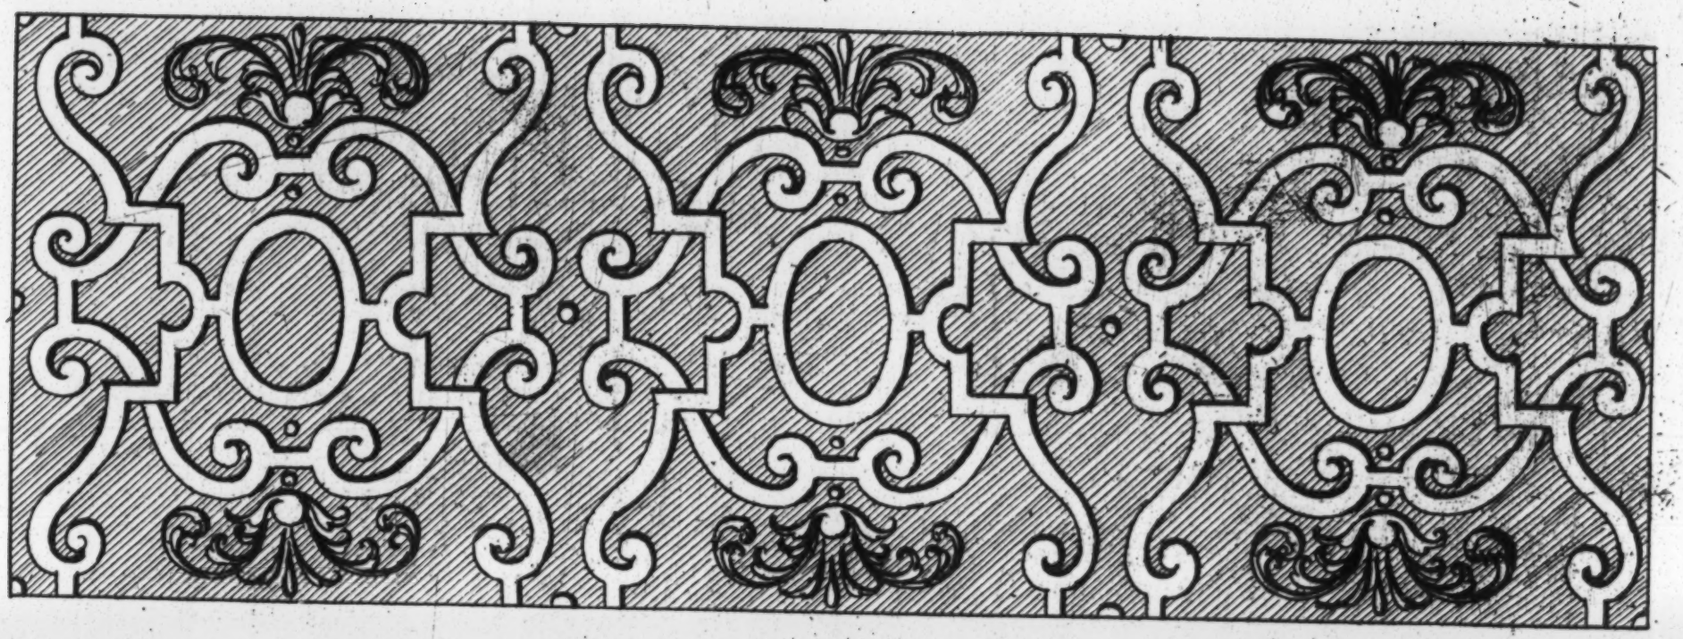
WILTON·GARDEN

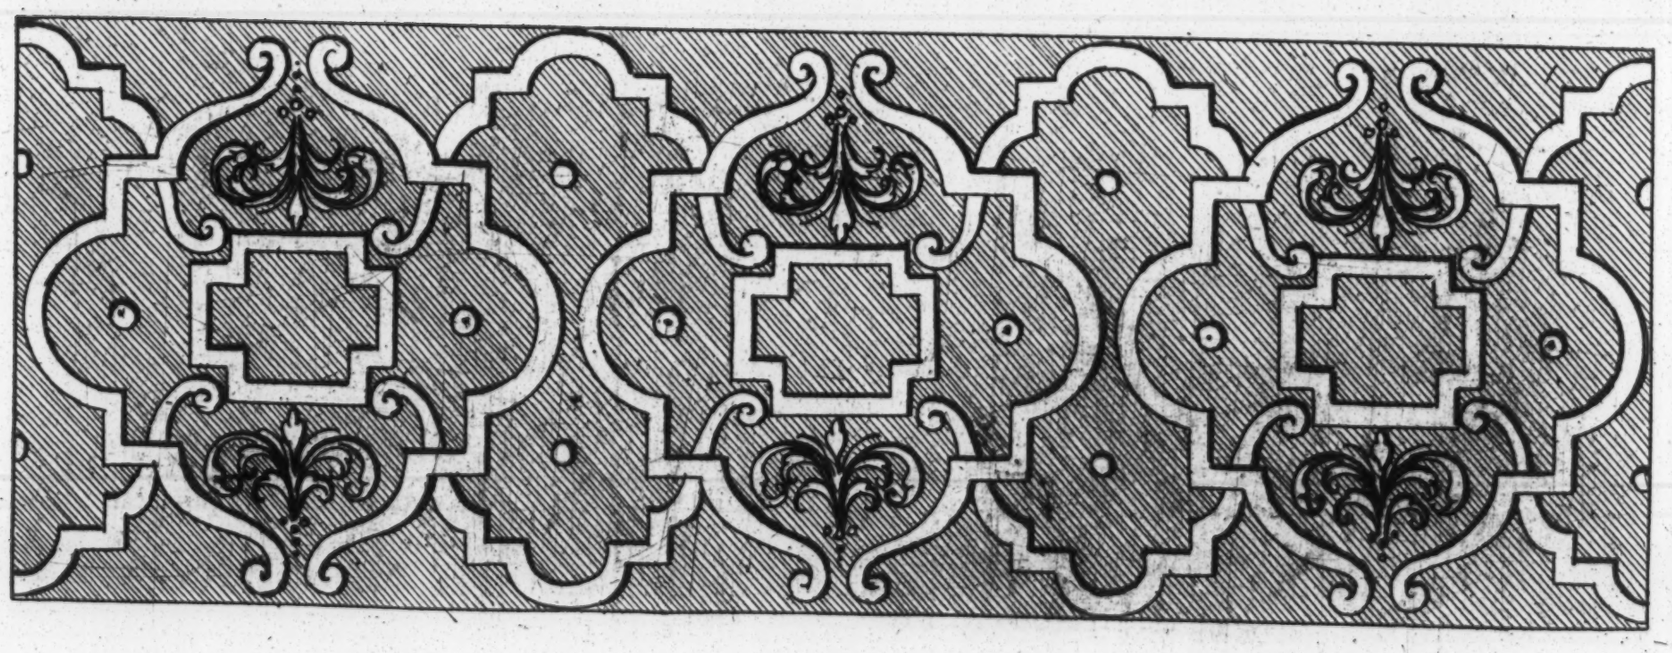
Are to bee sould by Thomas Rowlett att his shopp neare Temple Barre


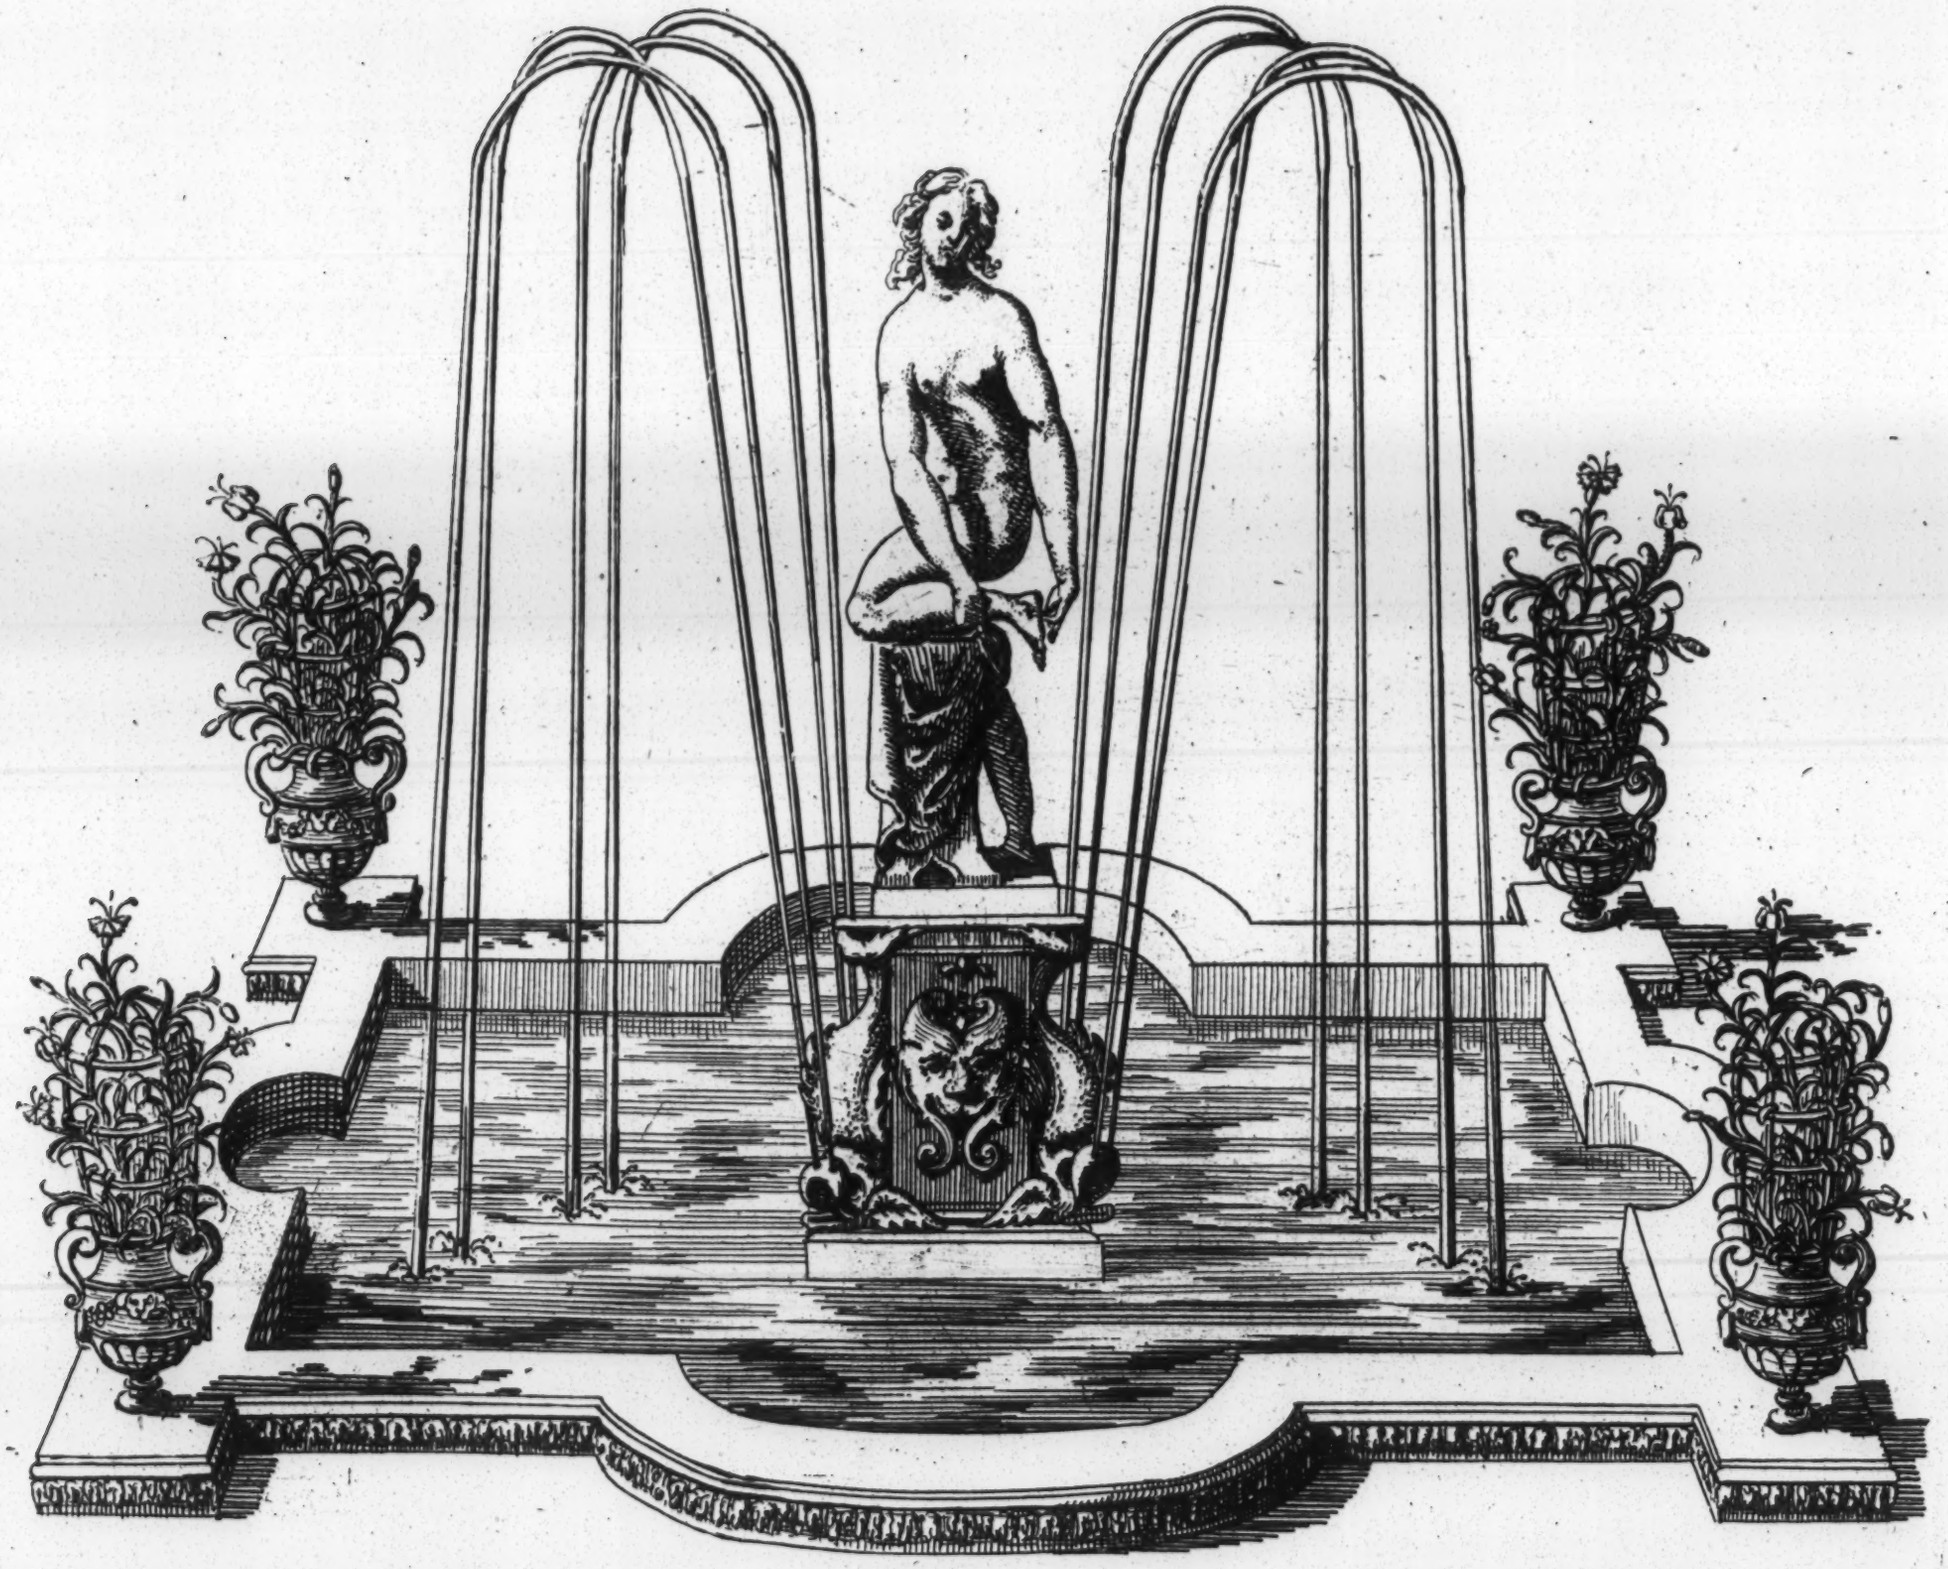


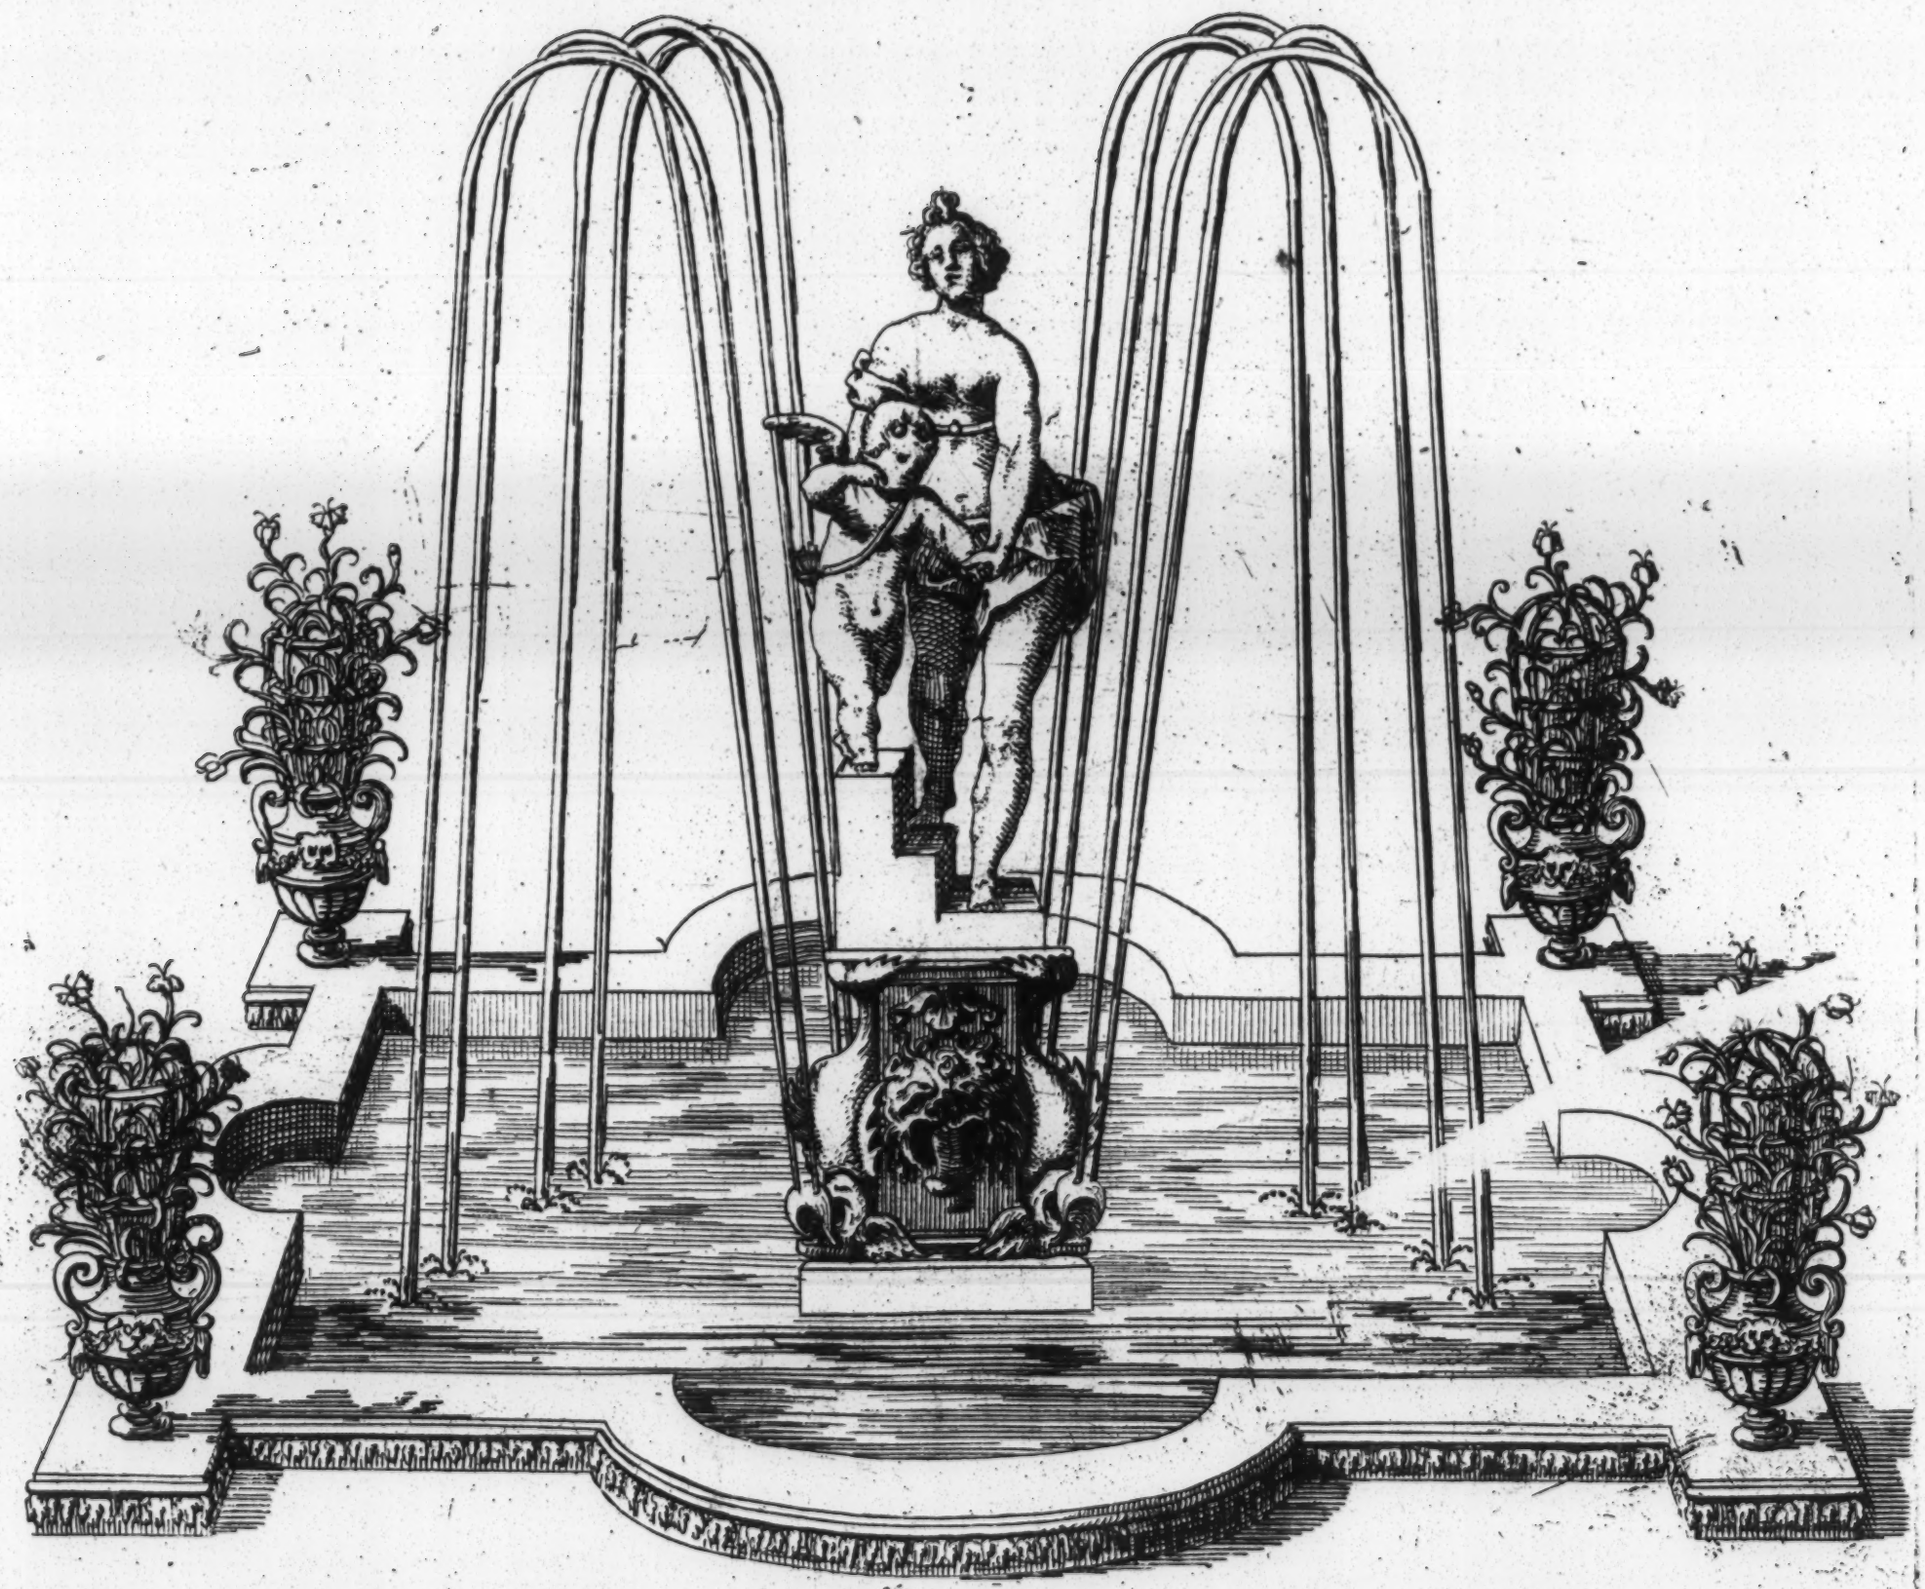


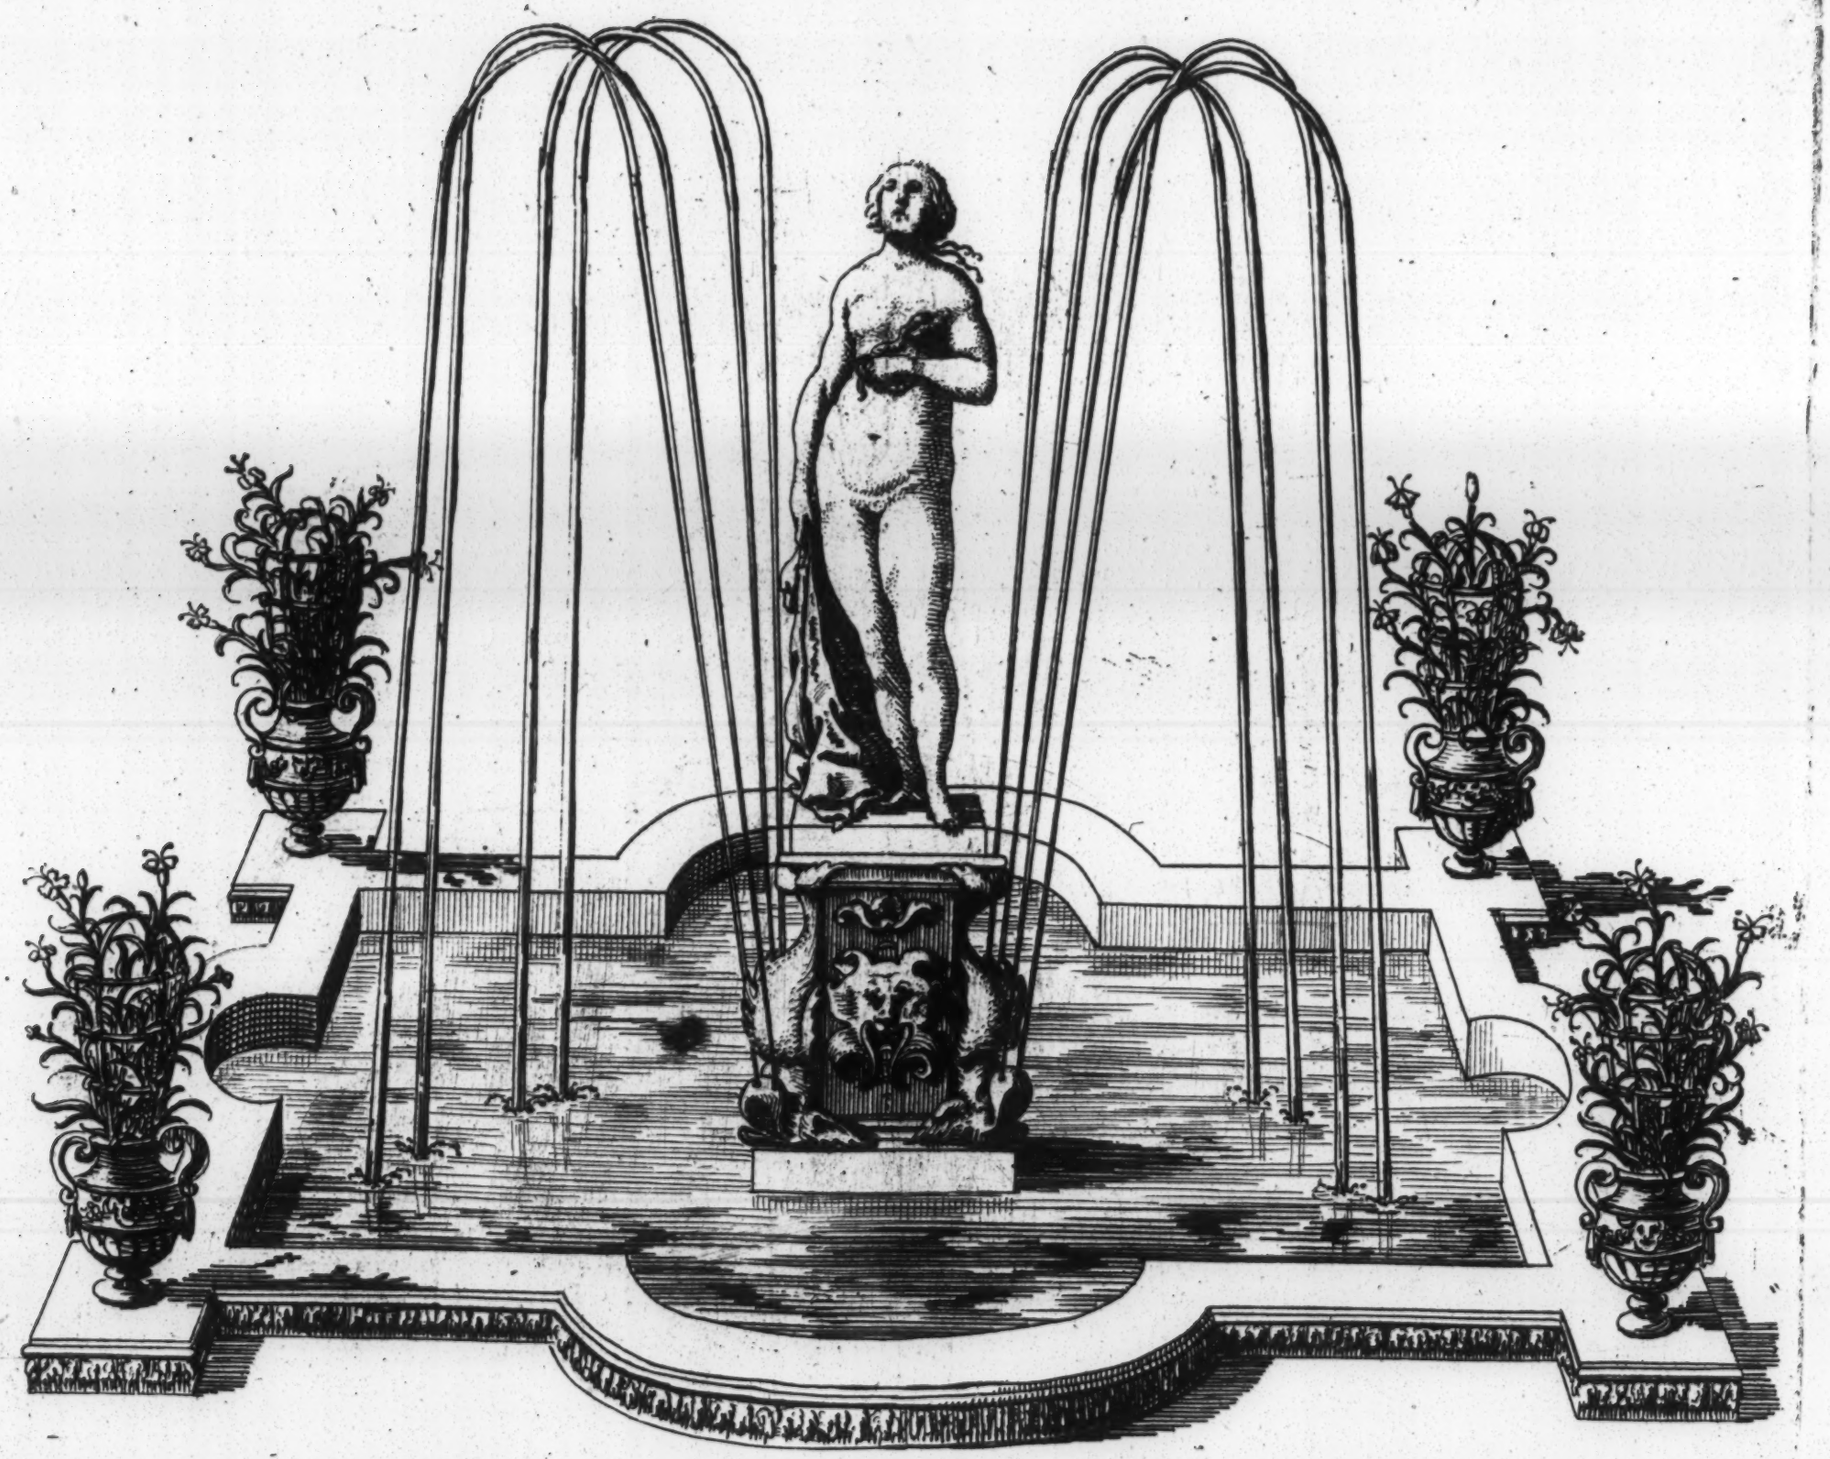


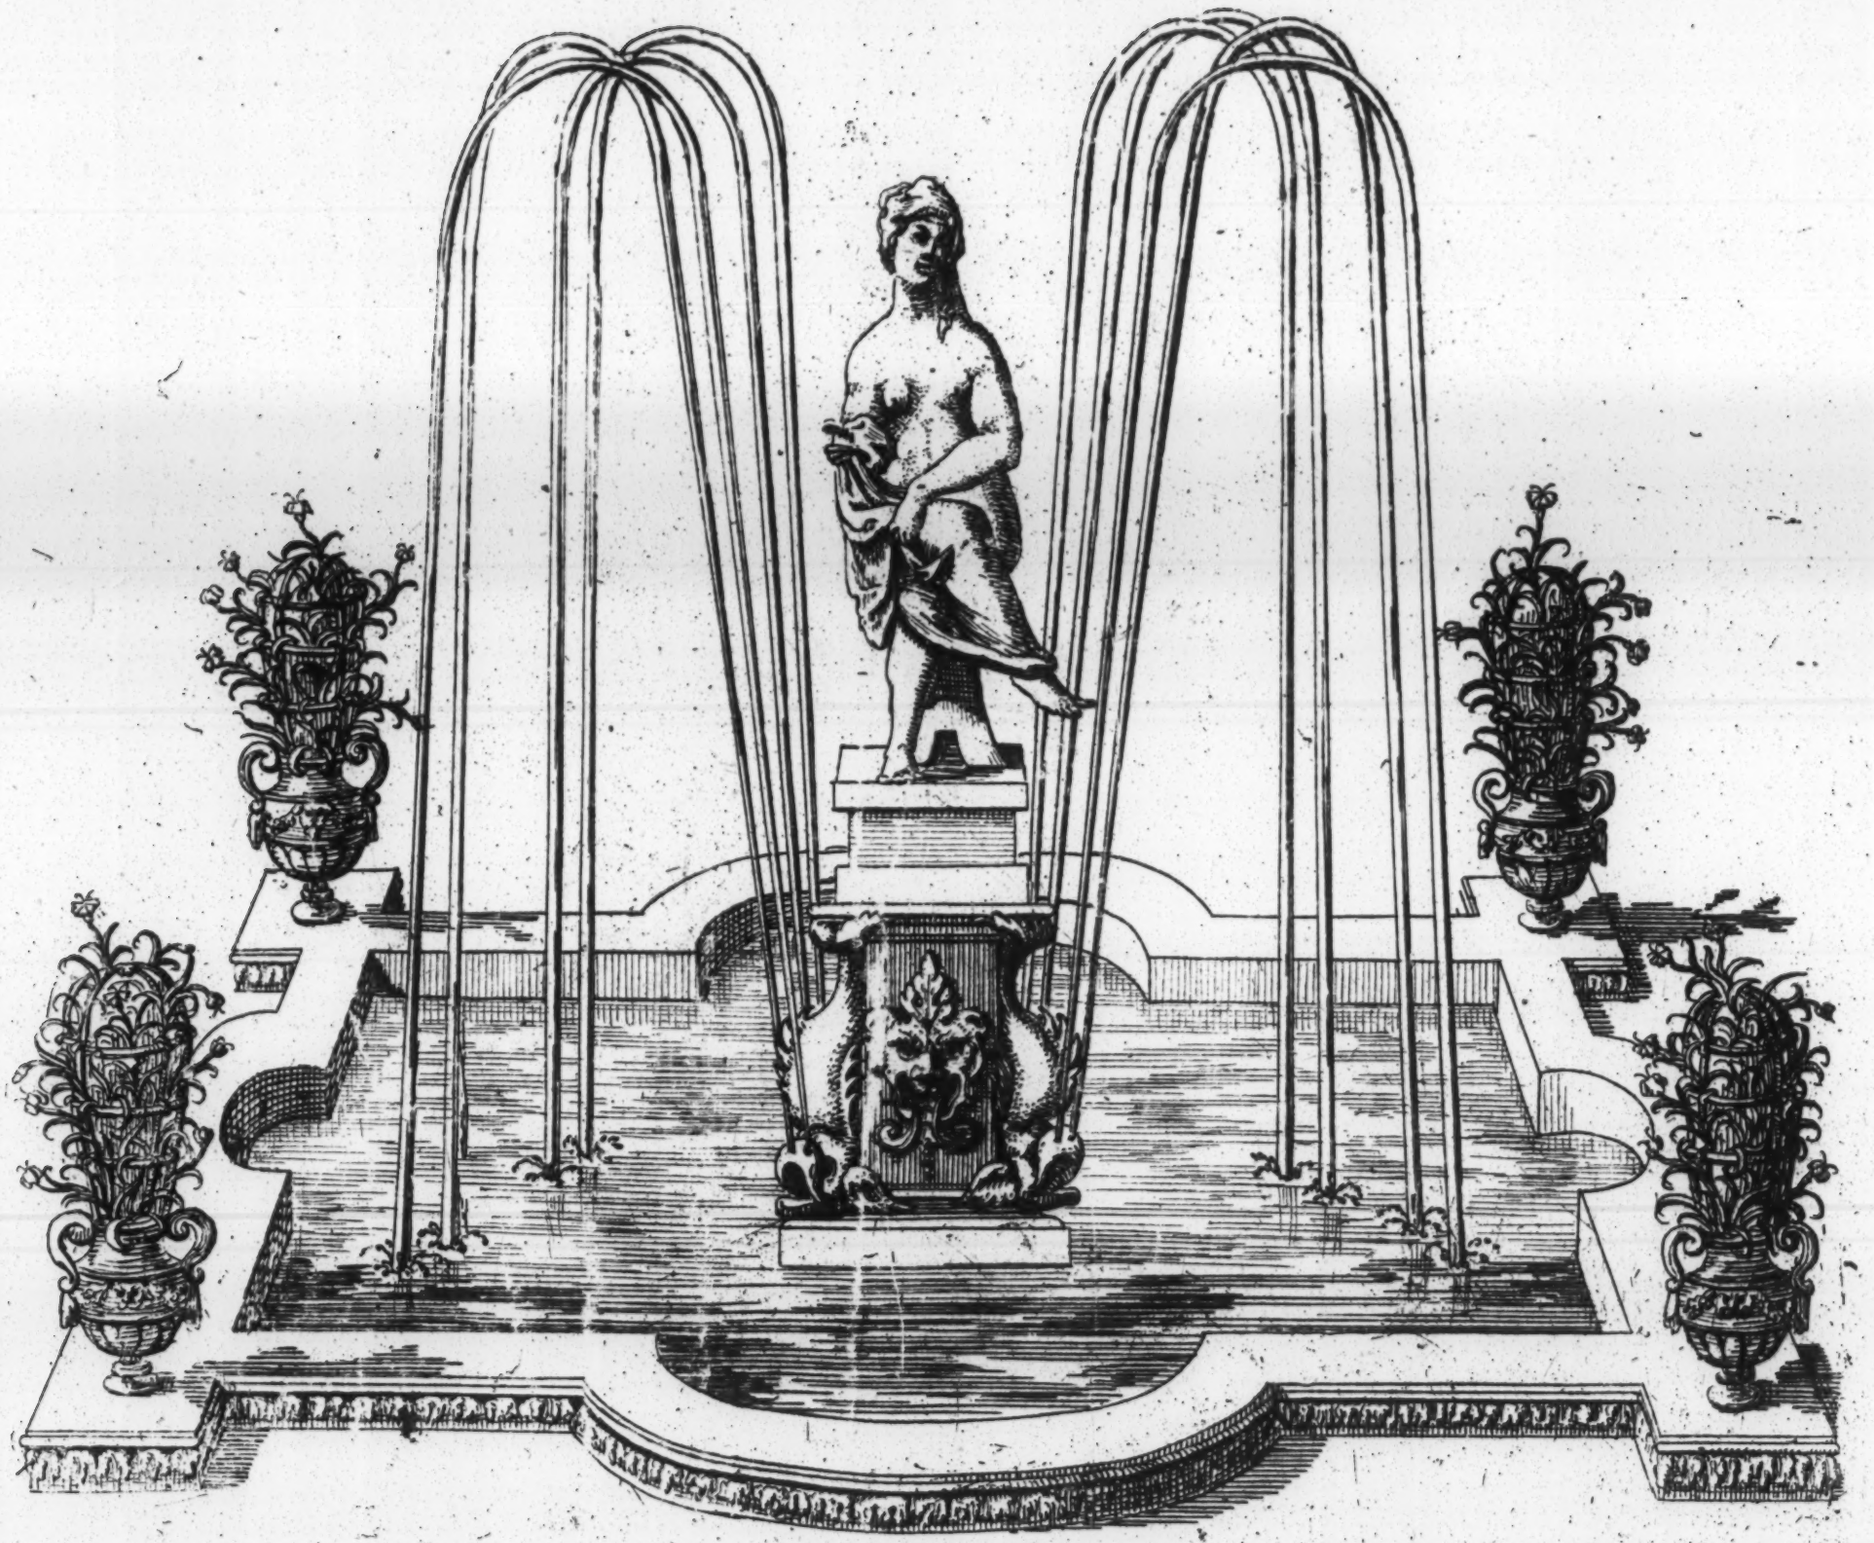


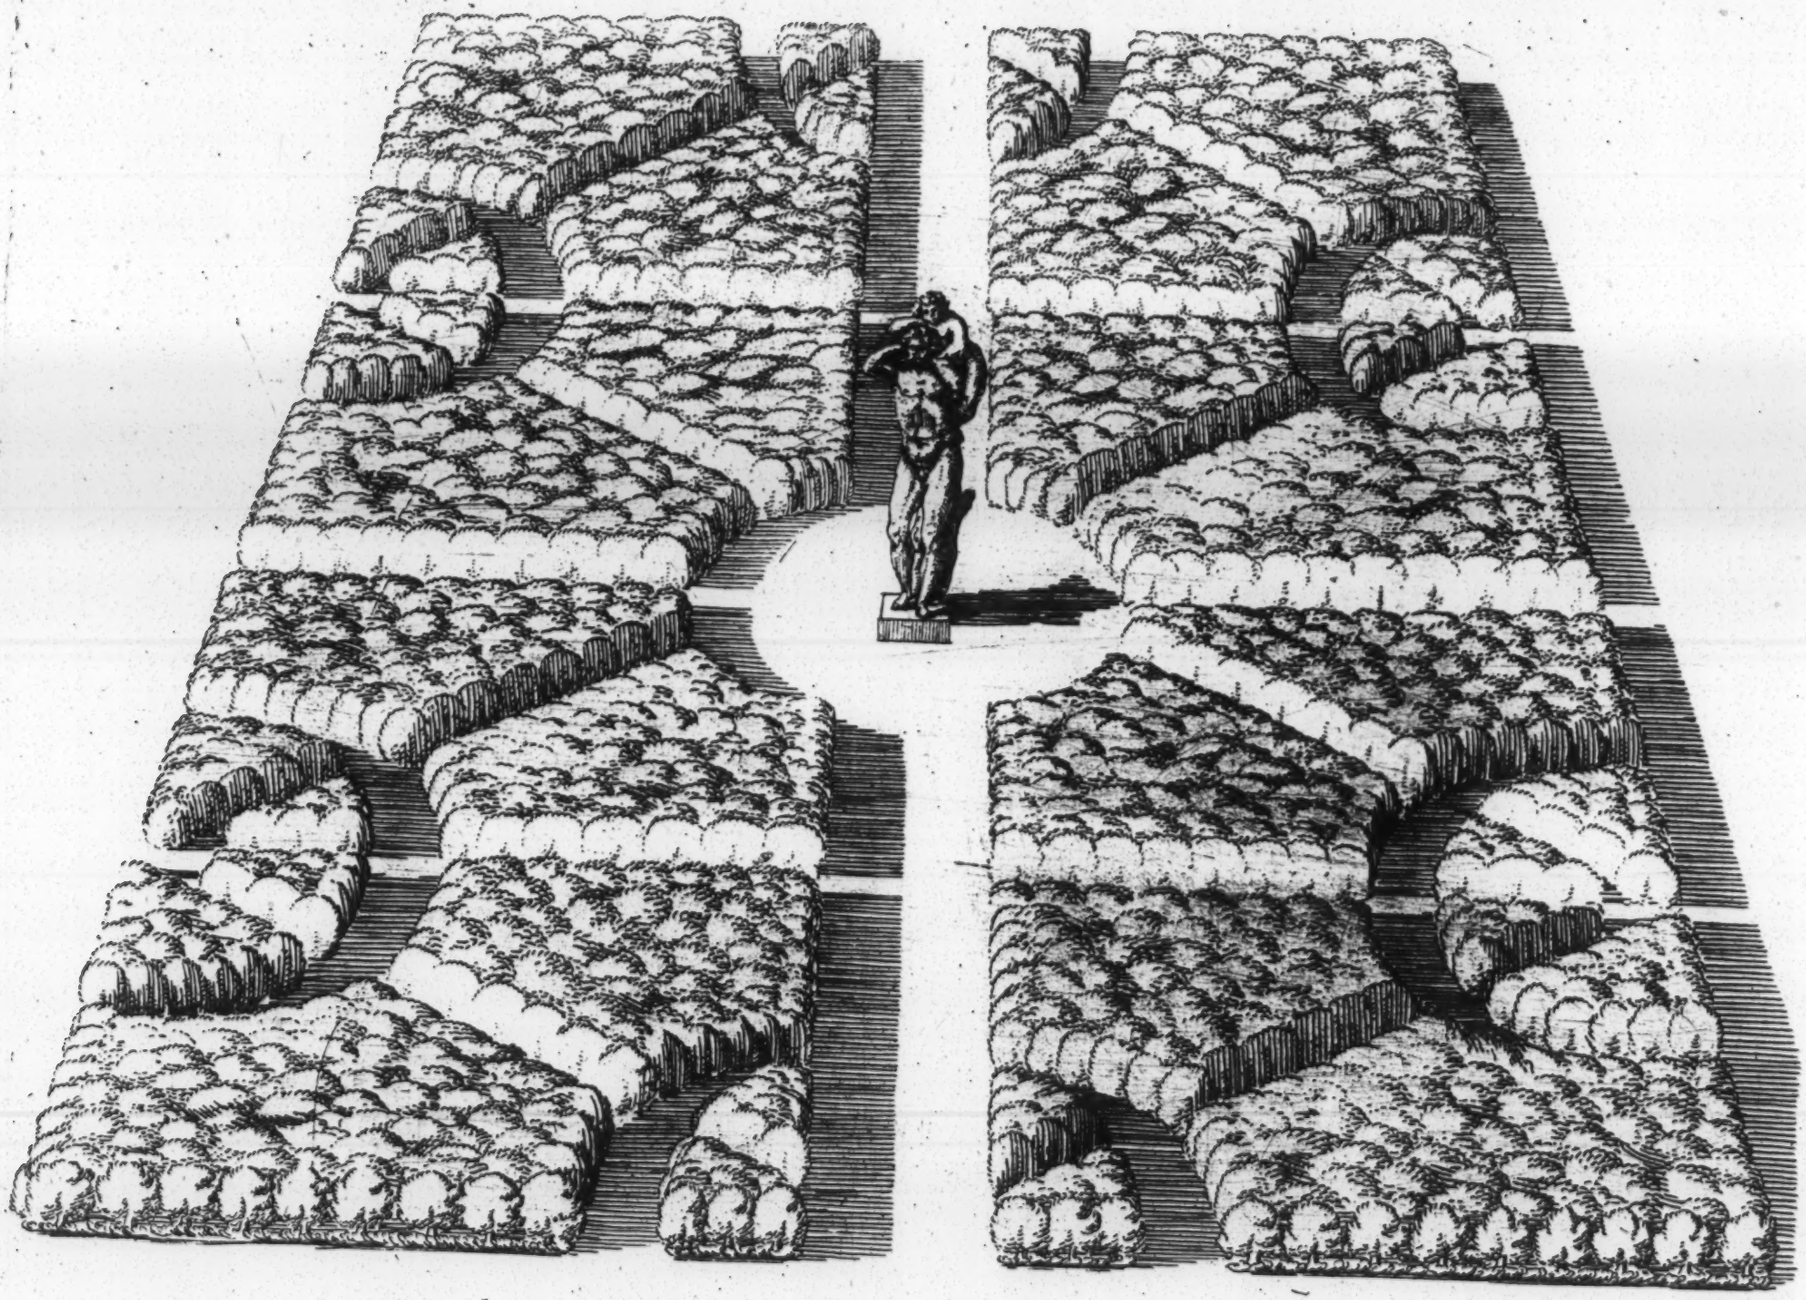


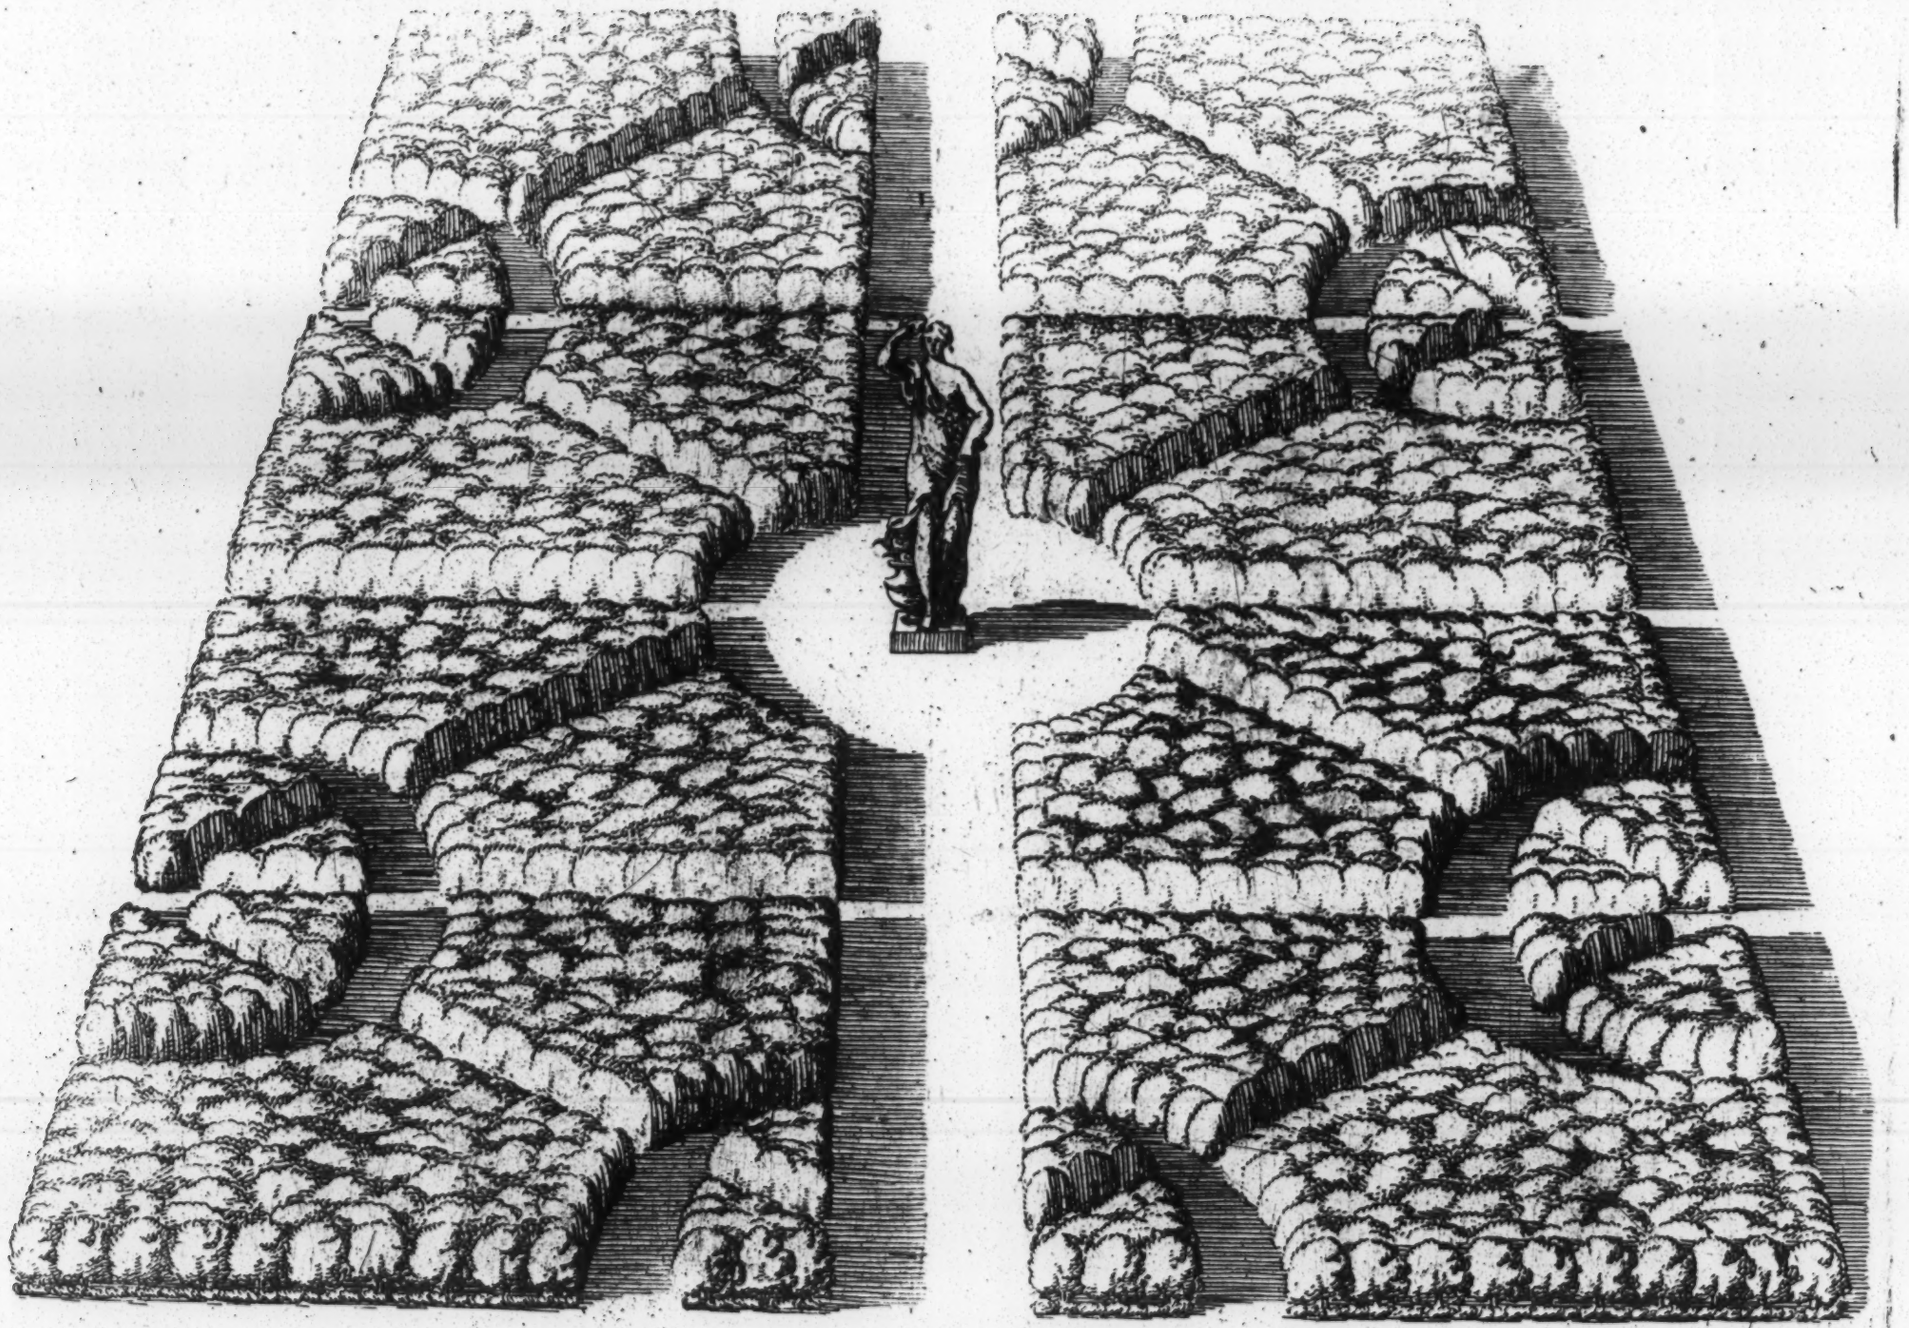


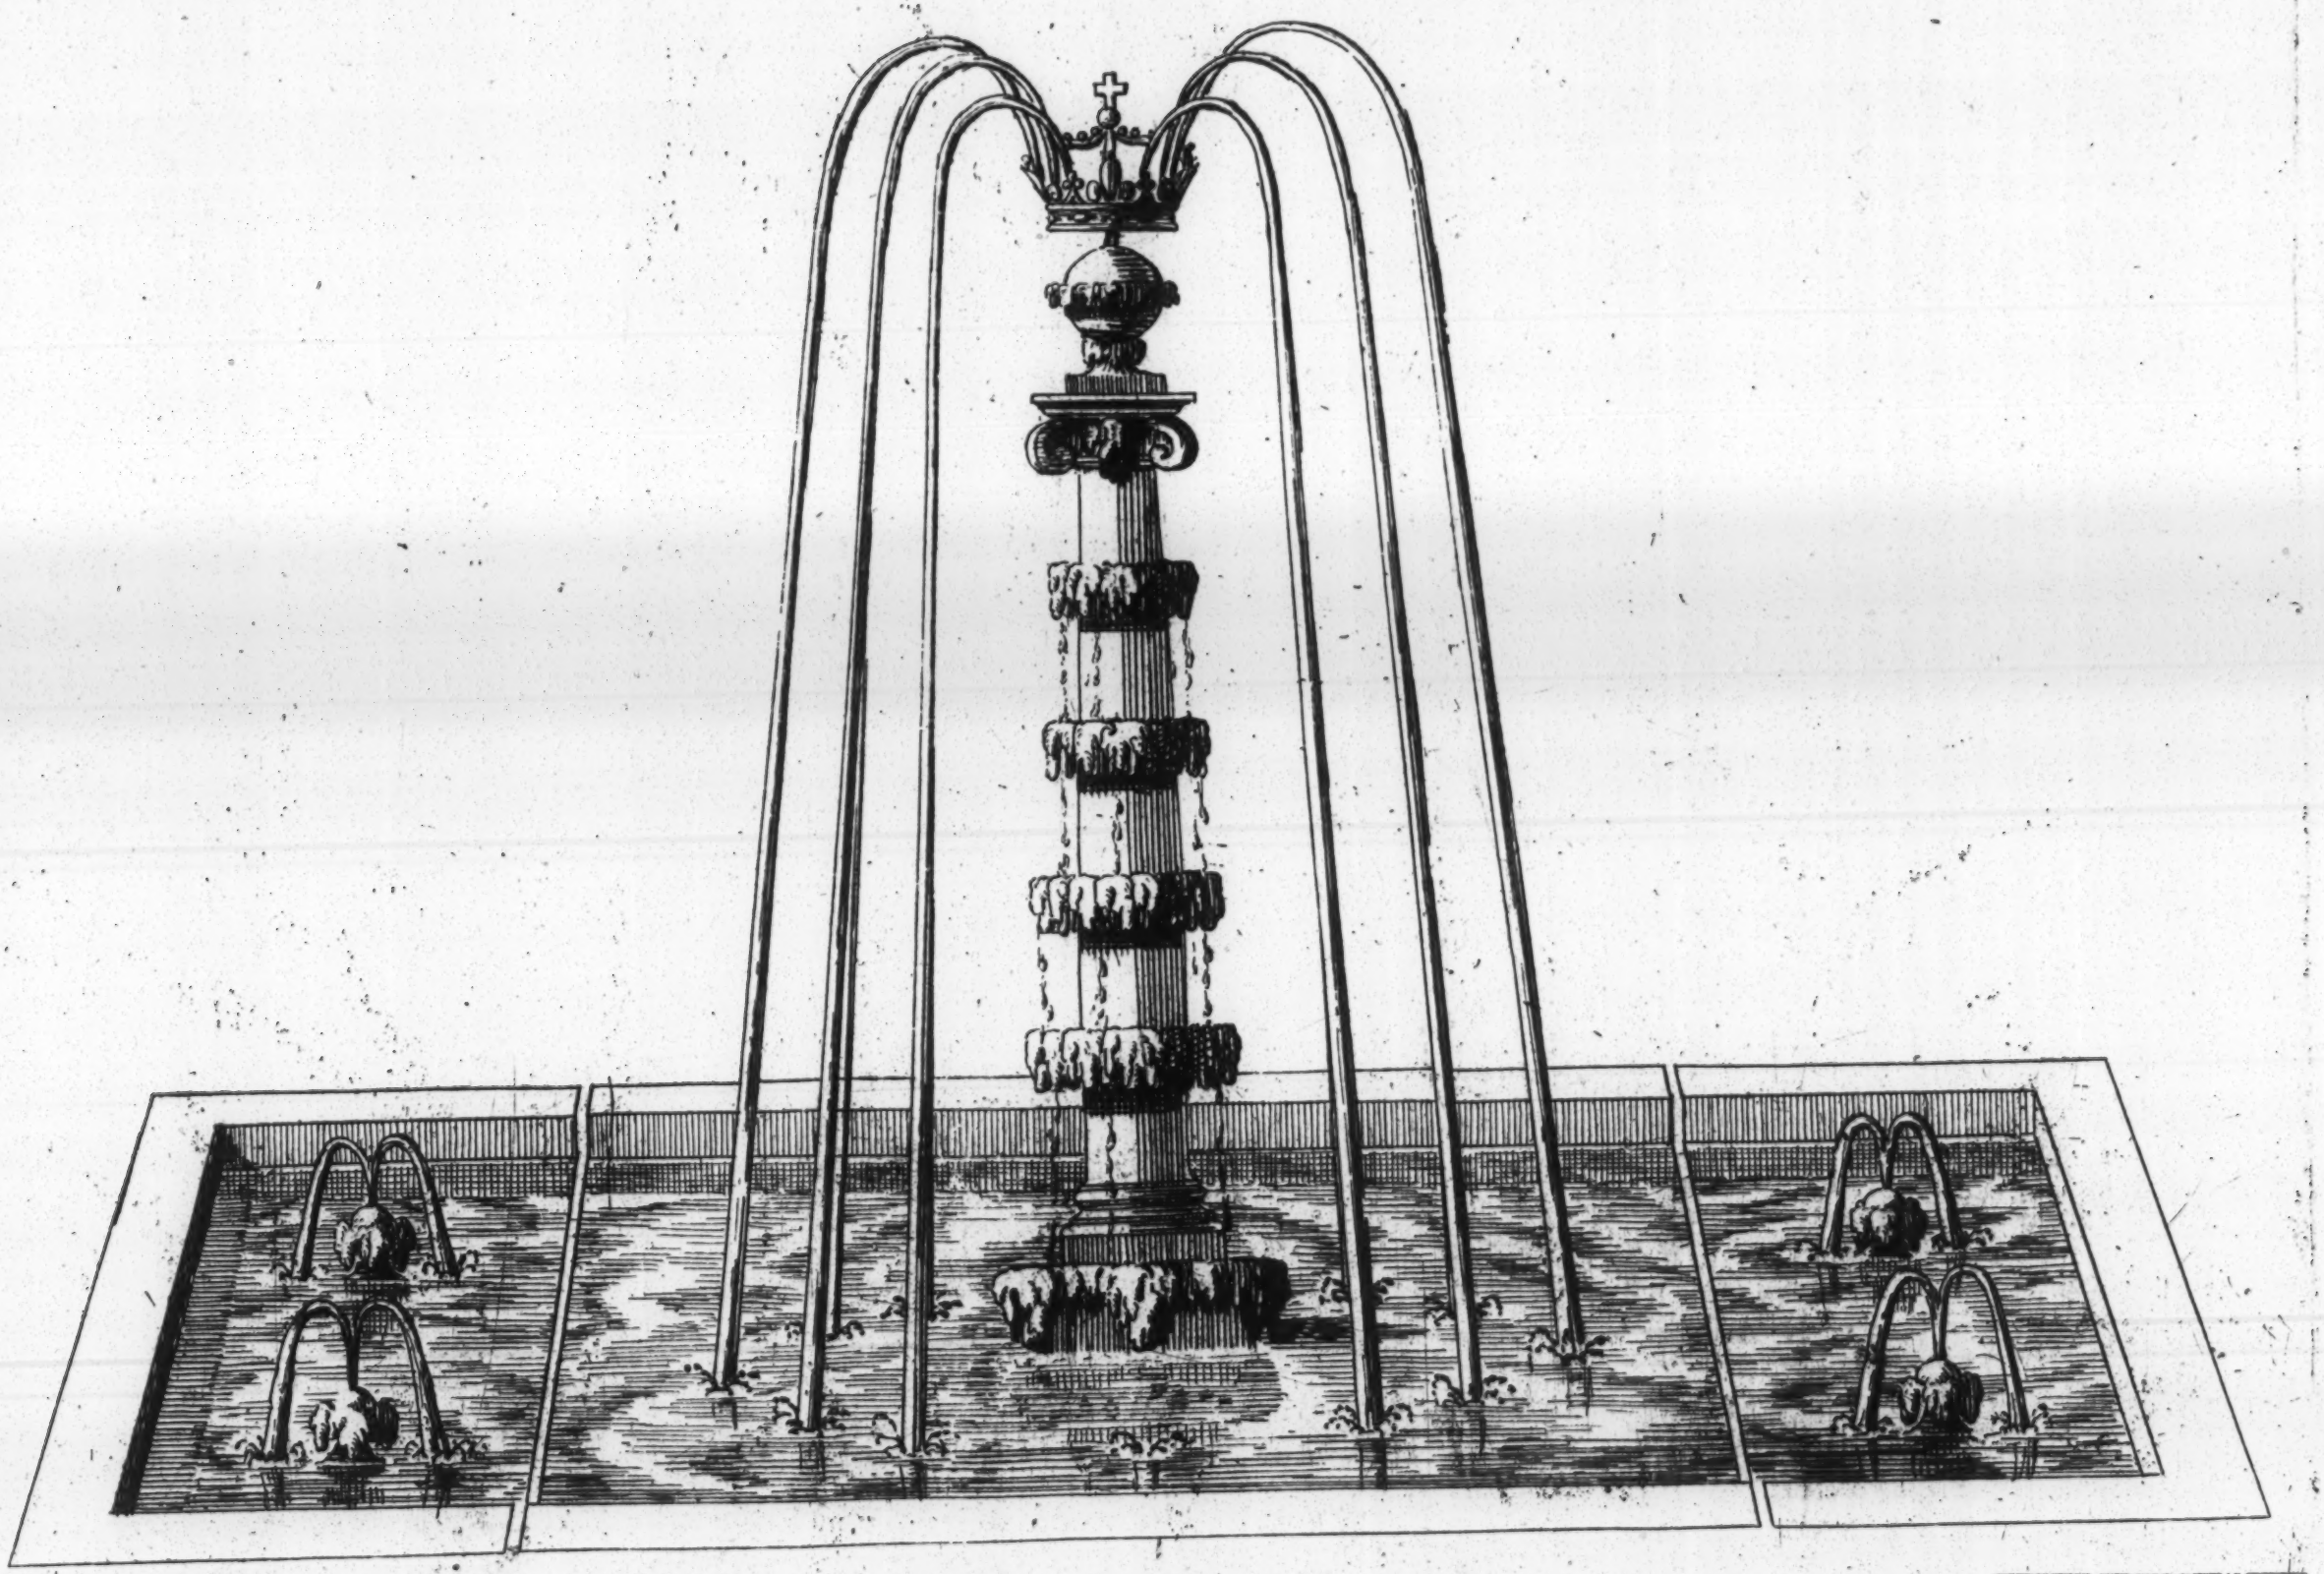


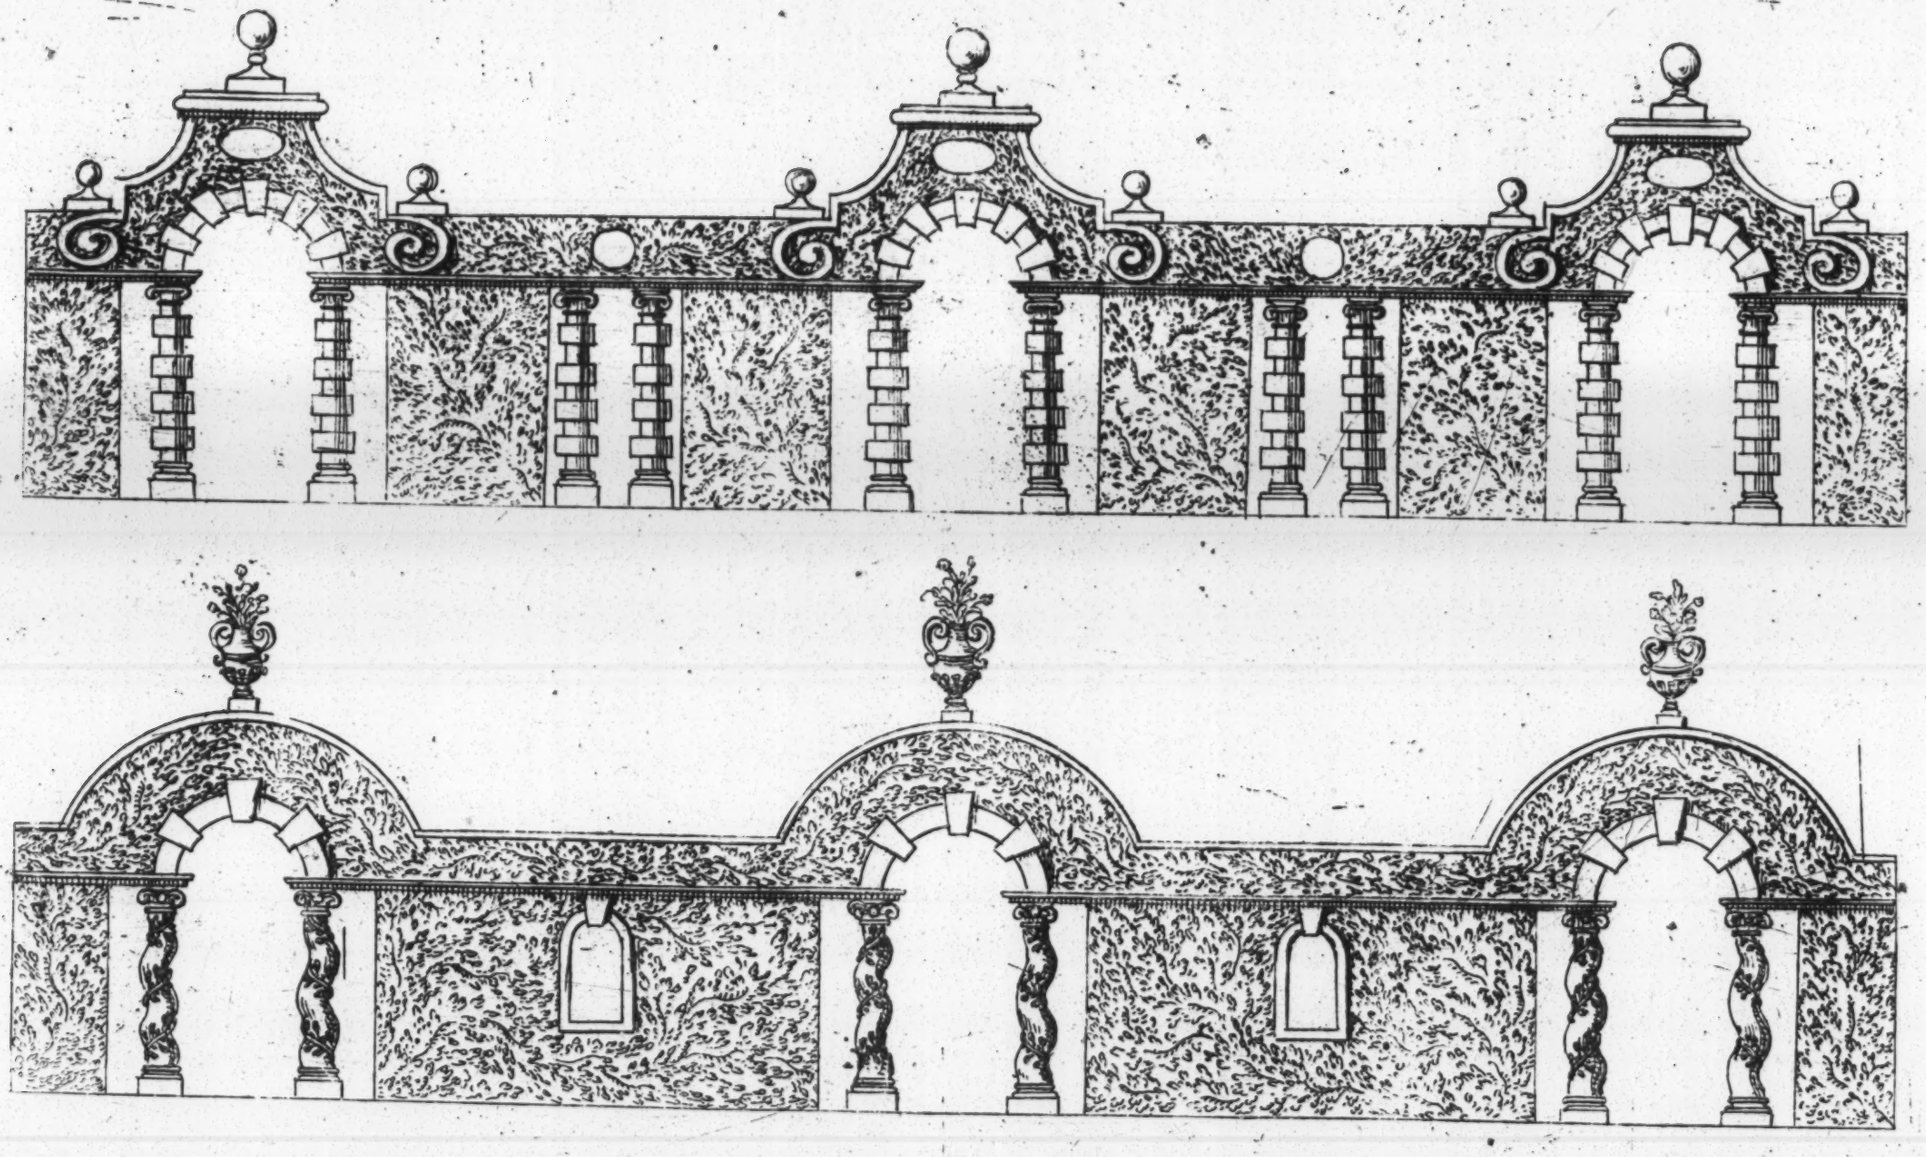


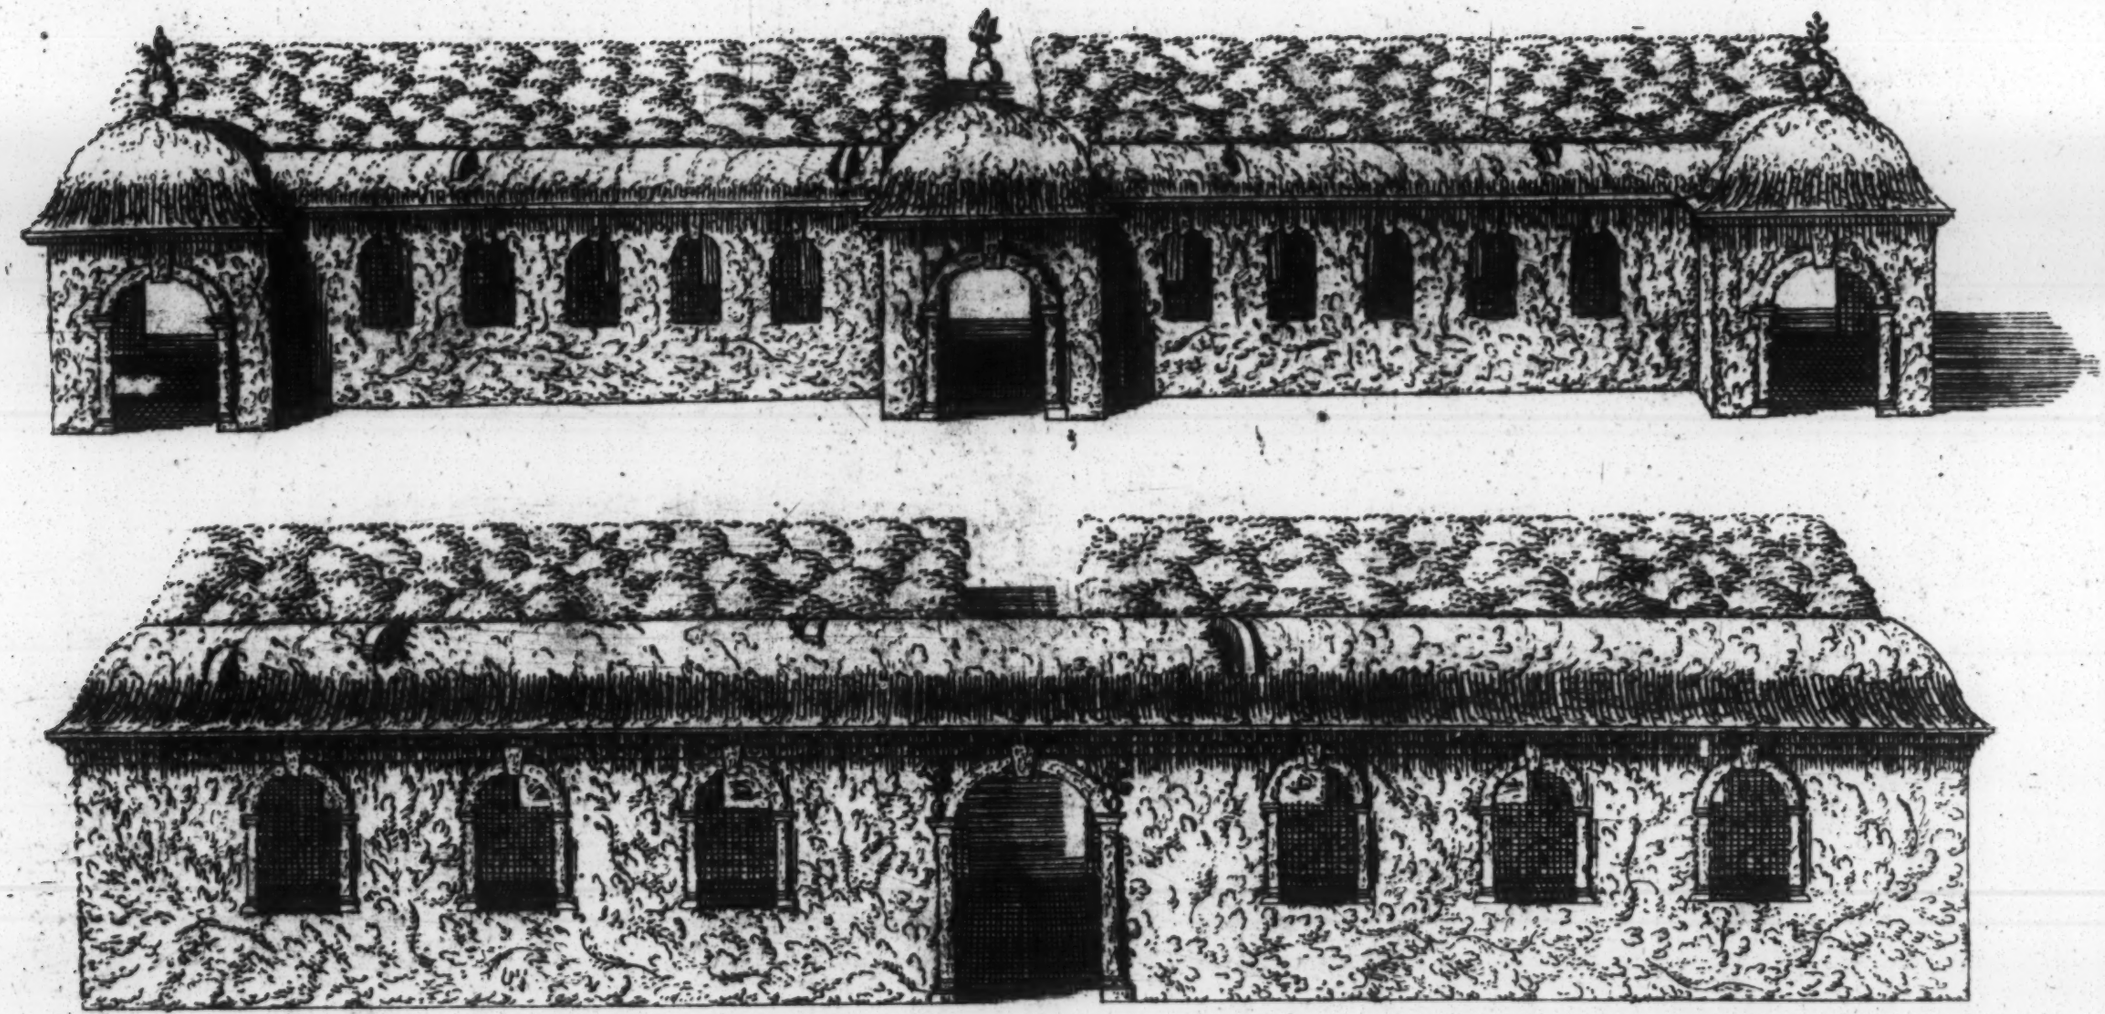


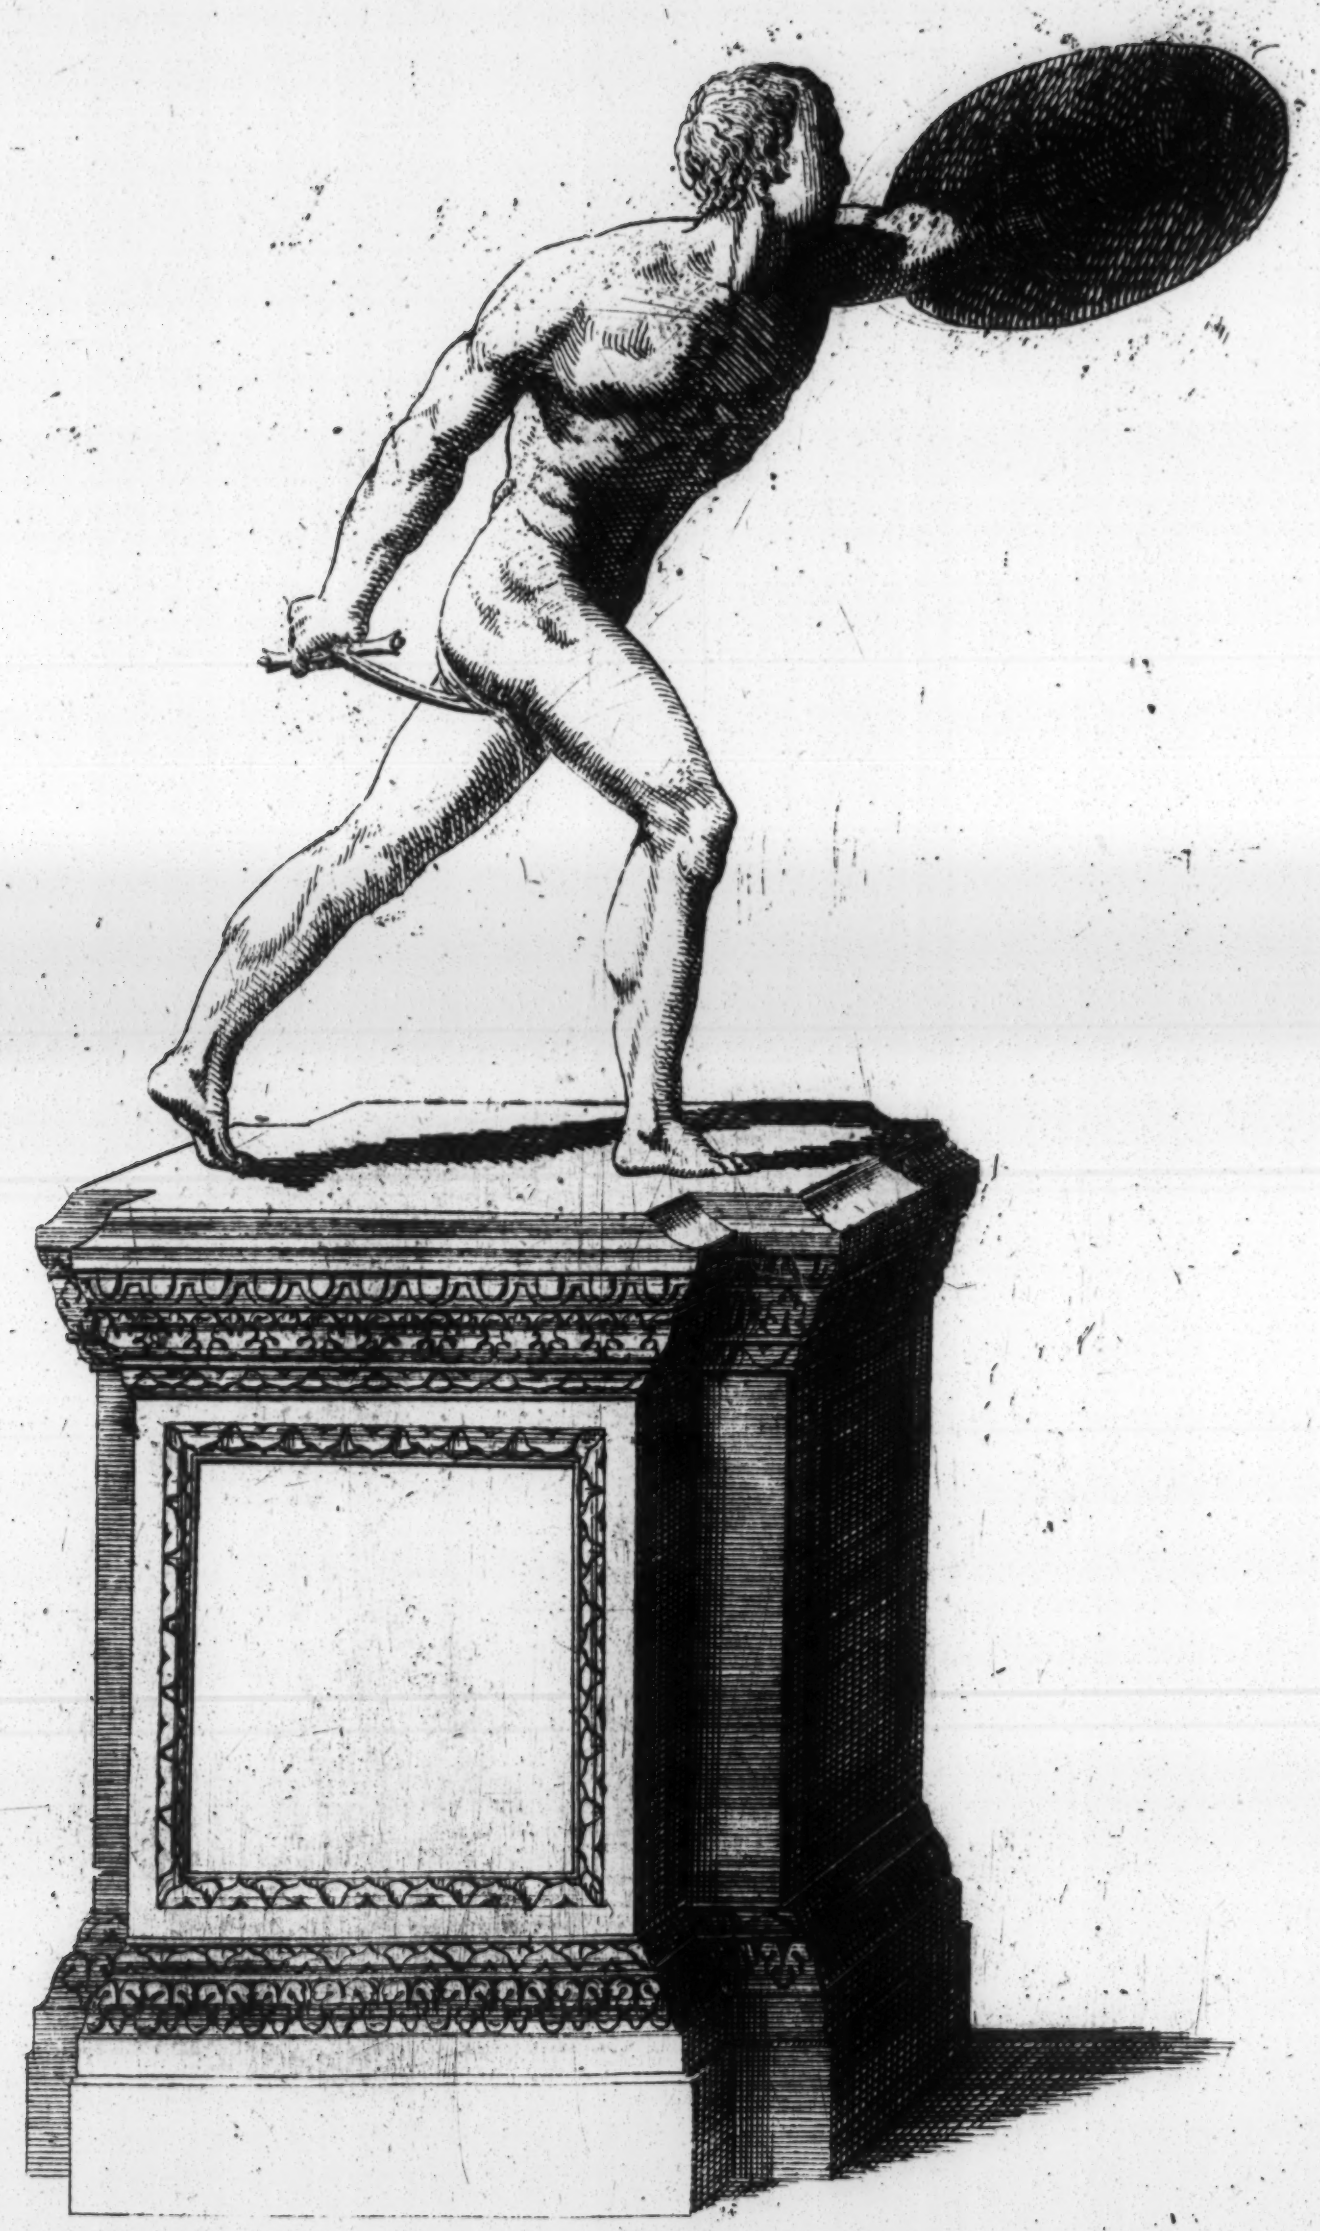


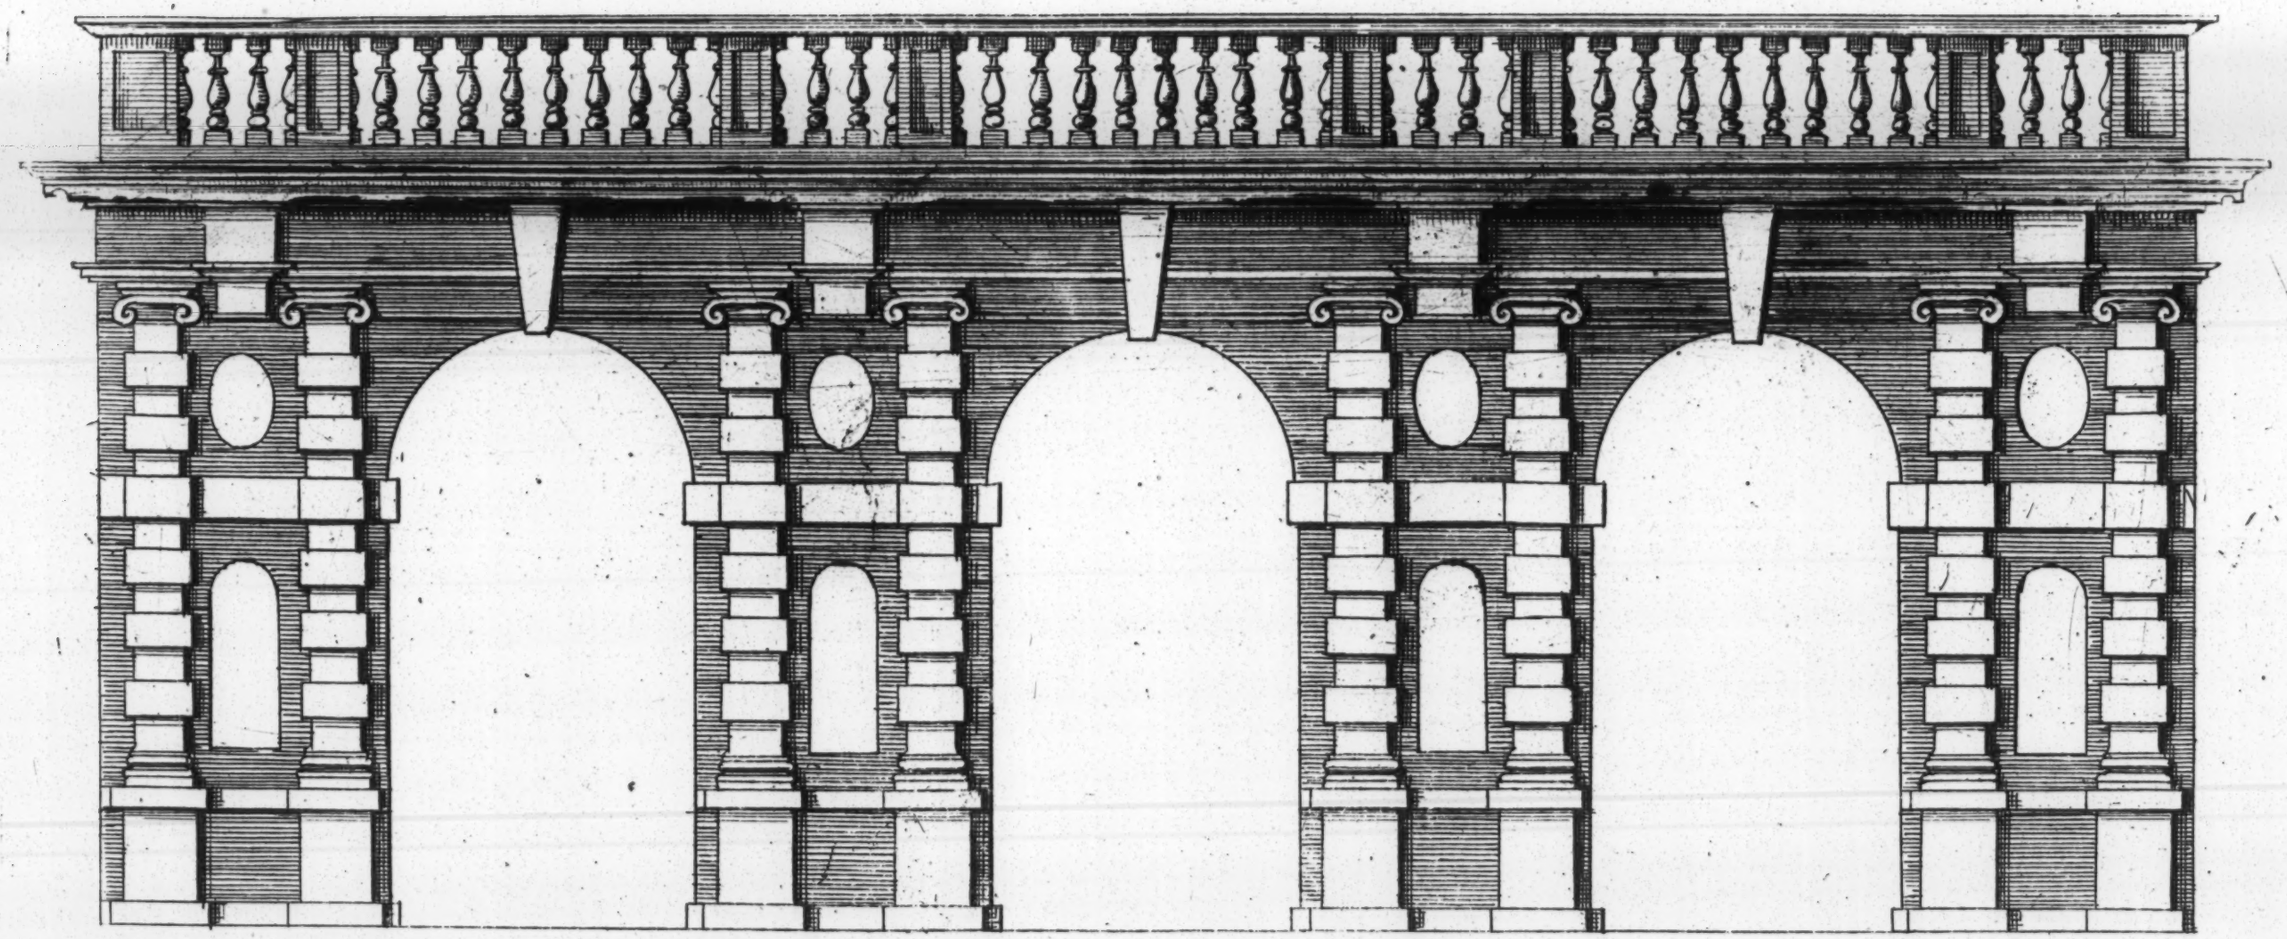


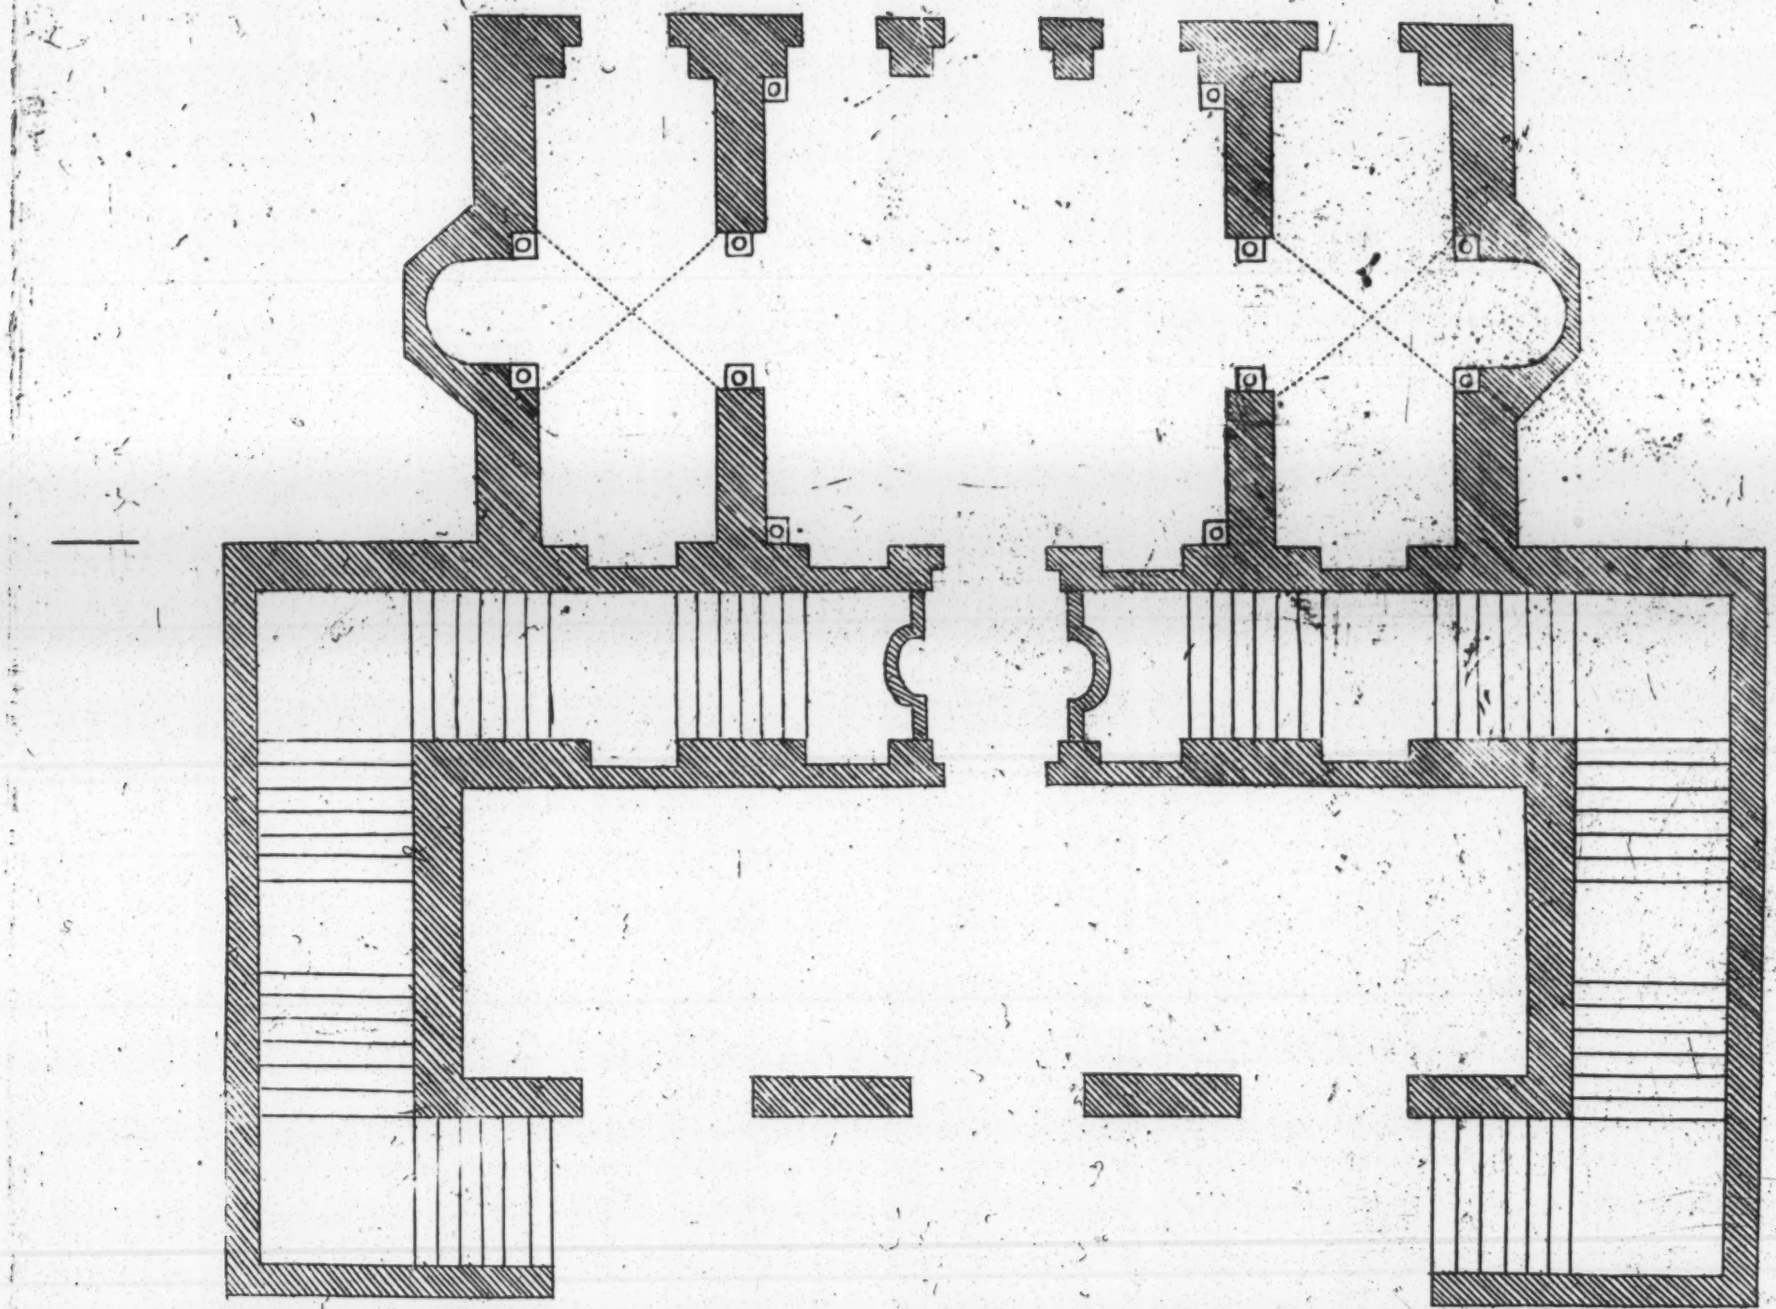


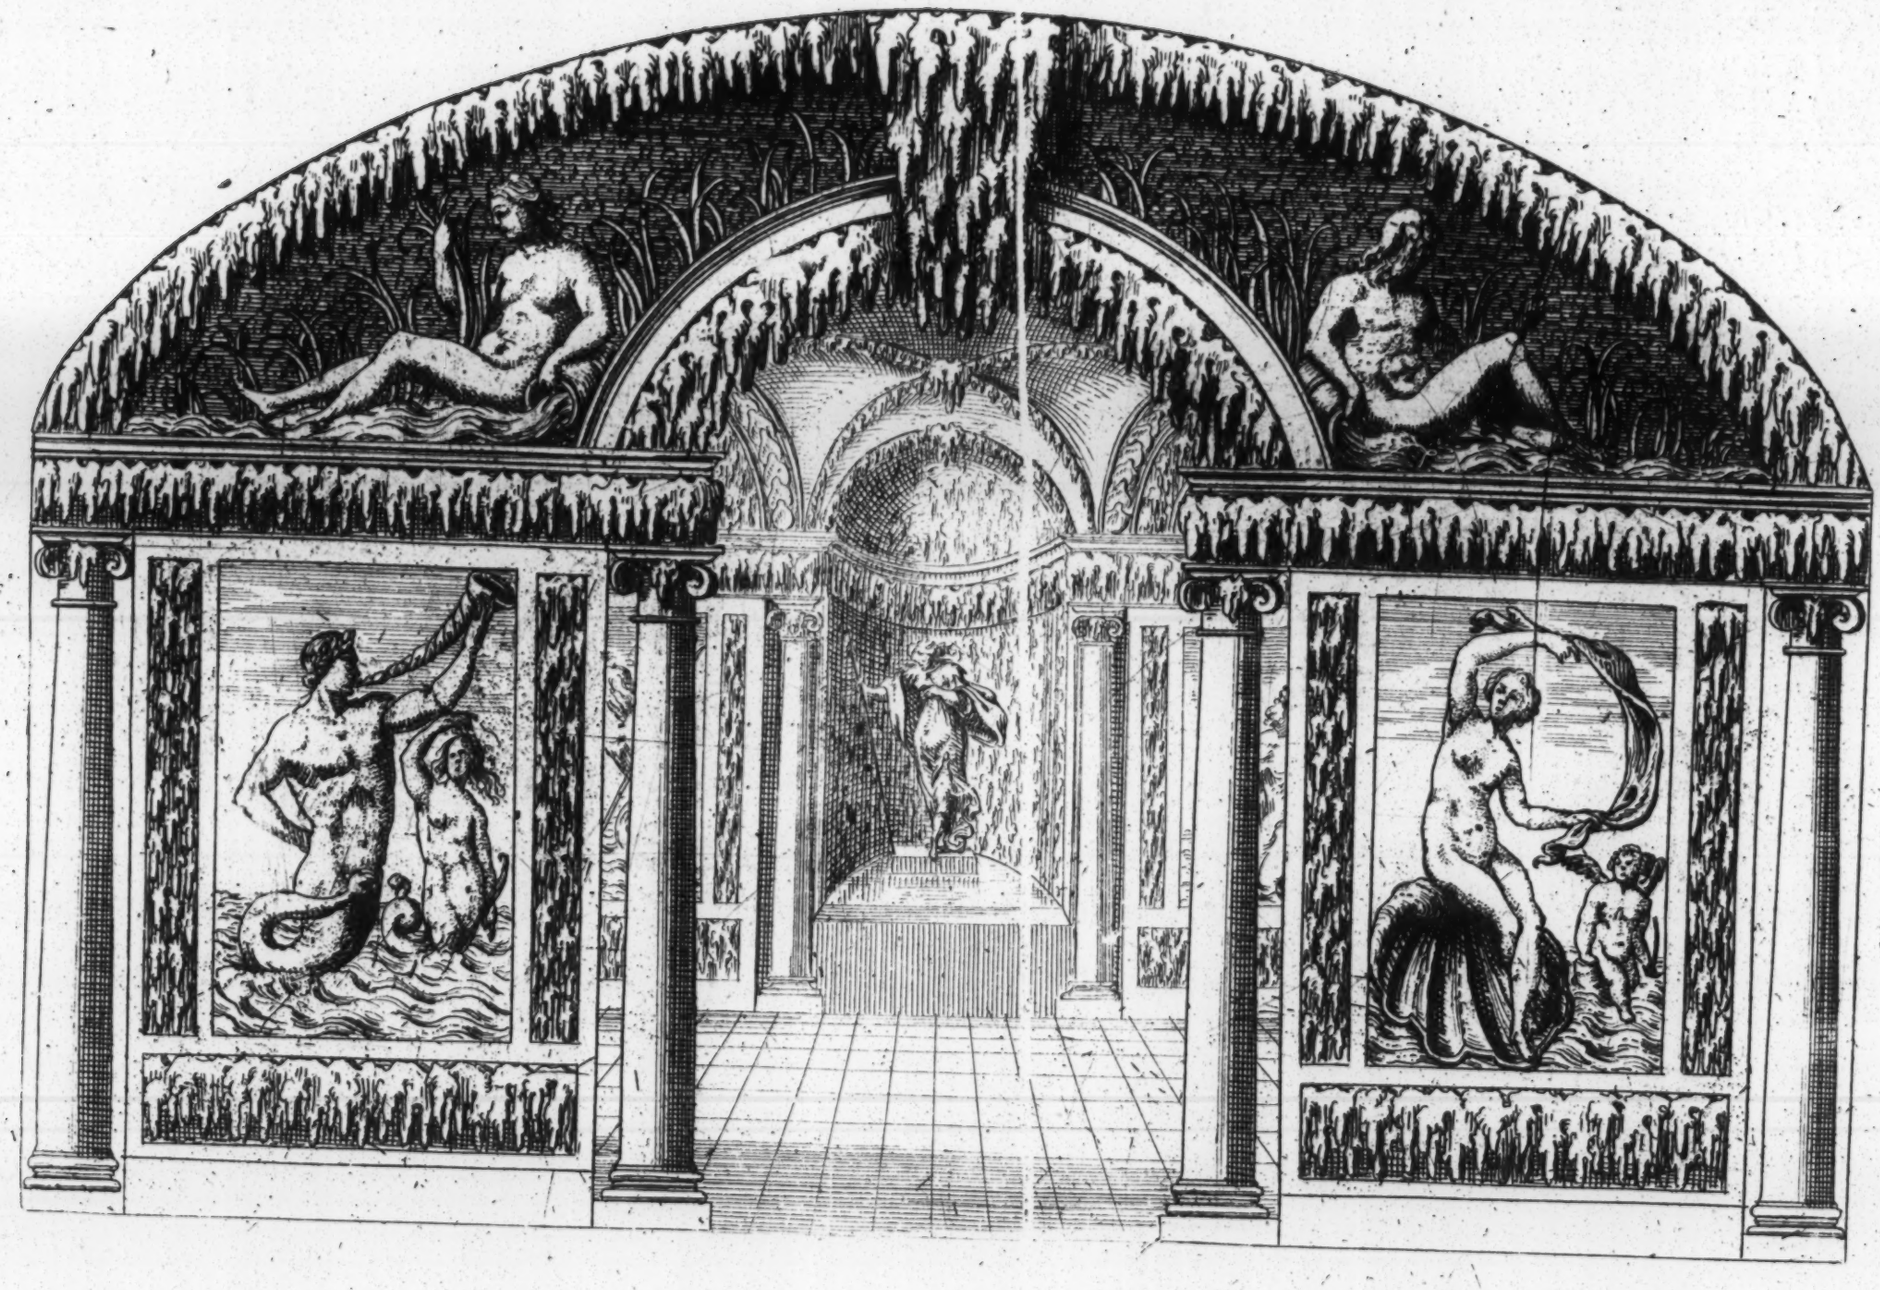


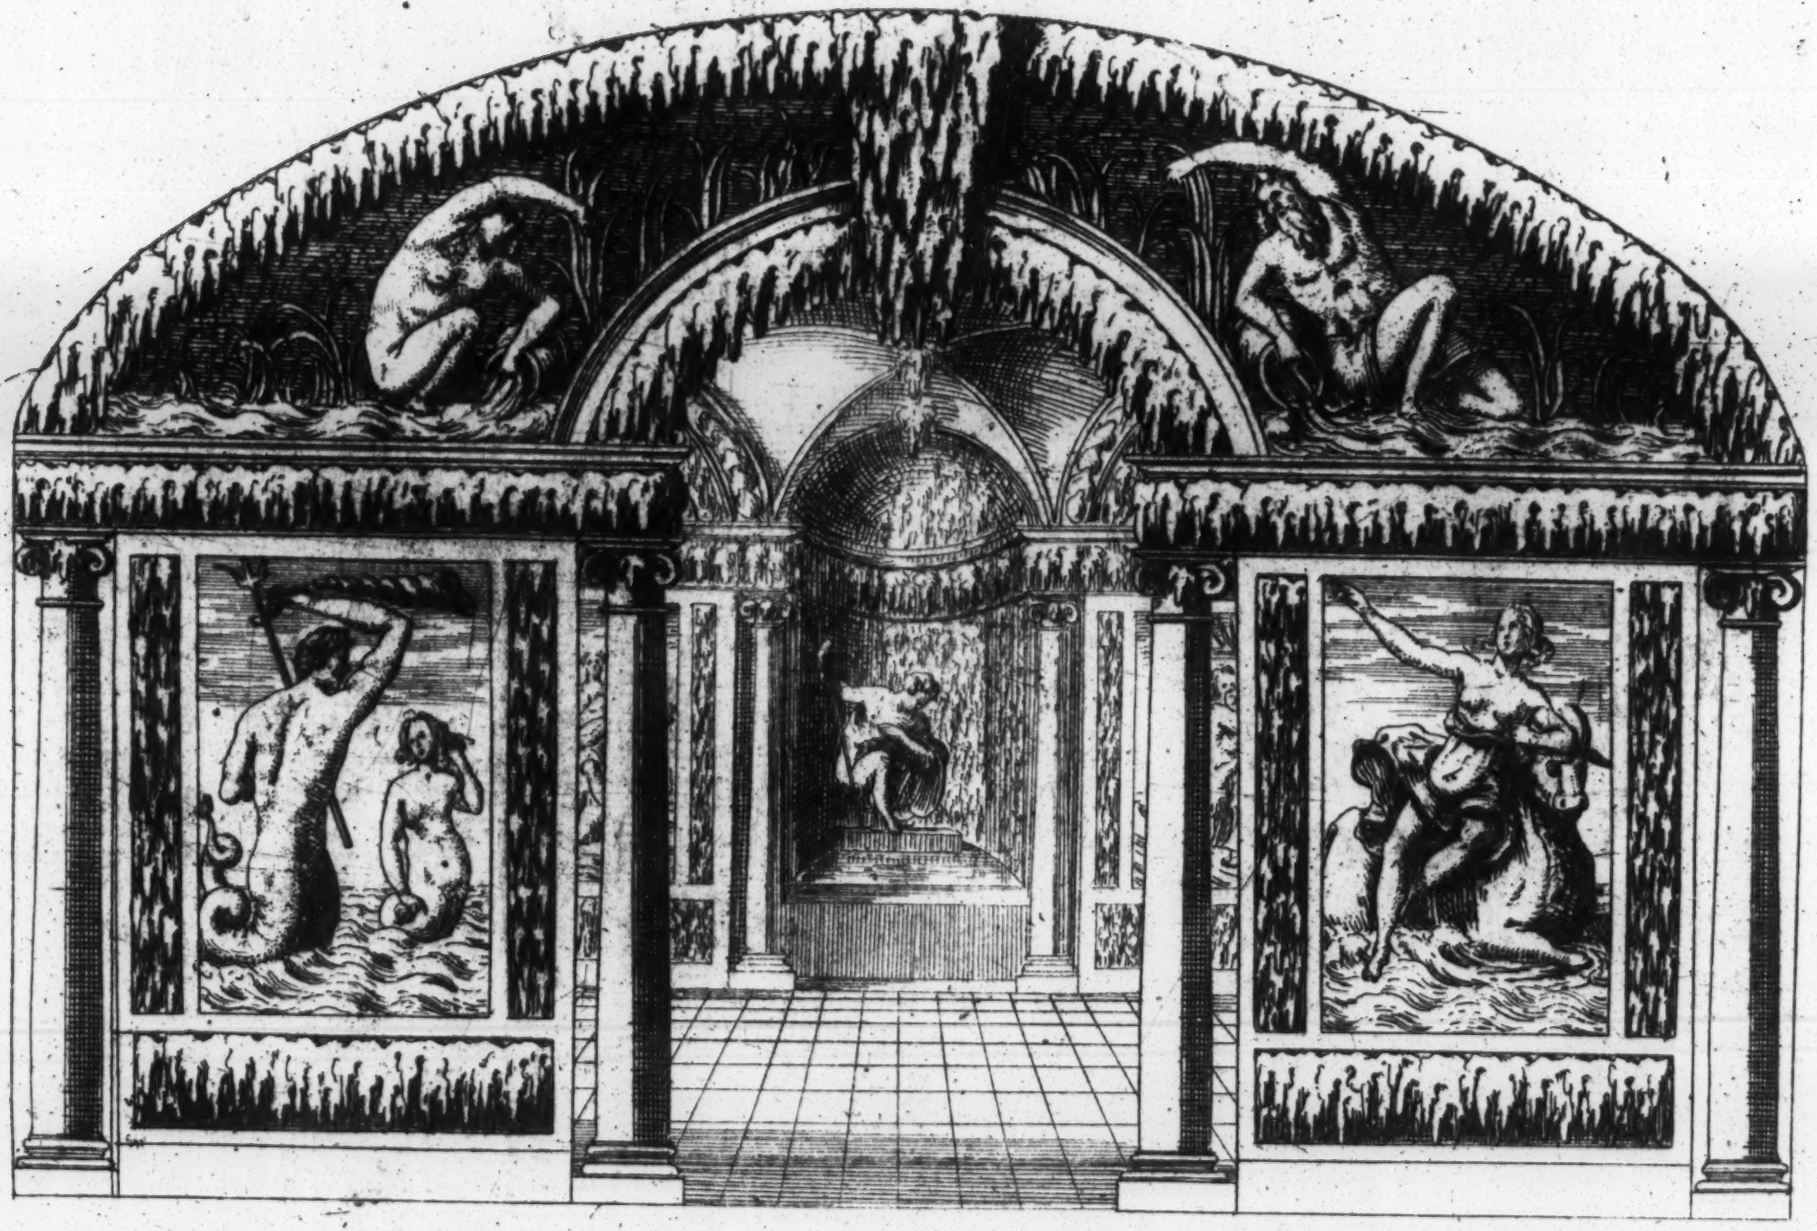


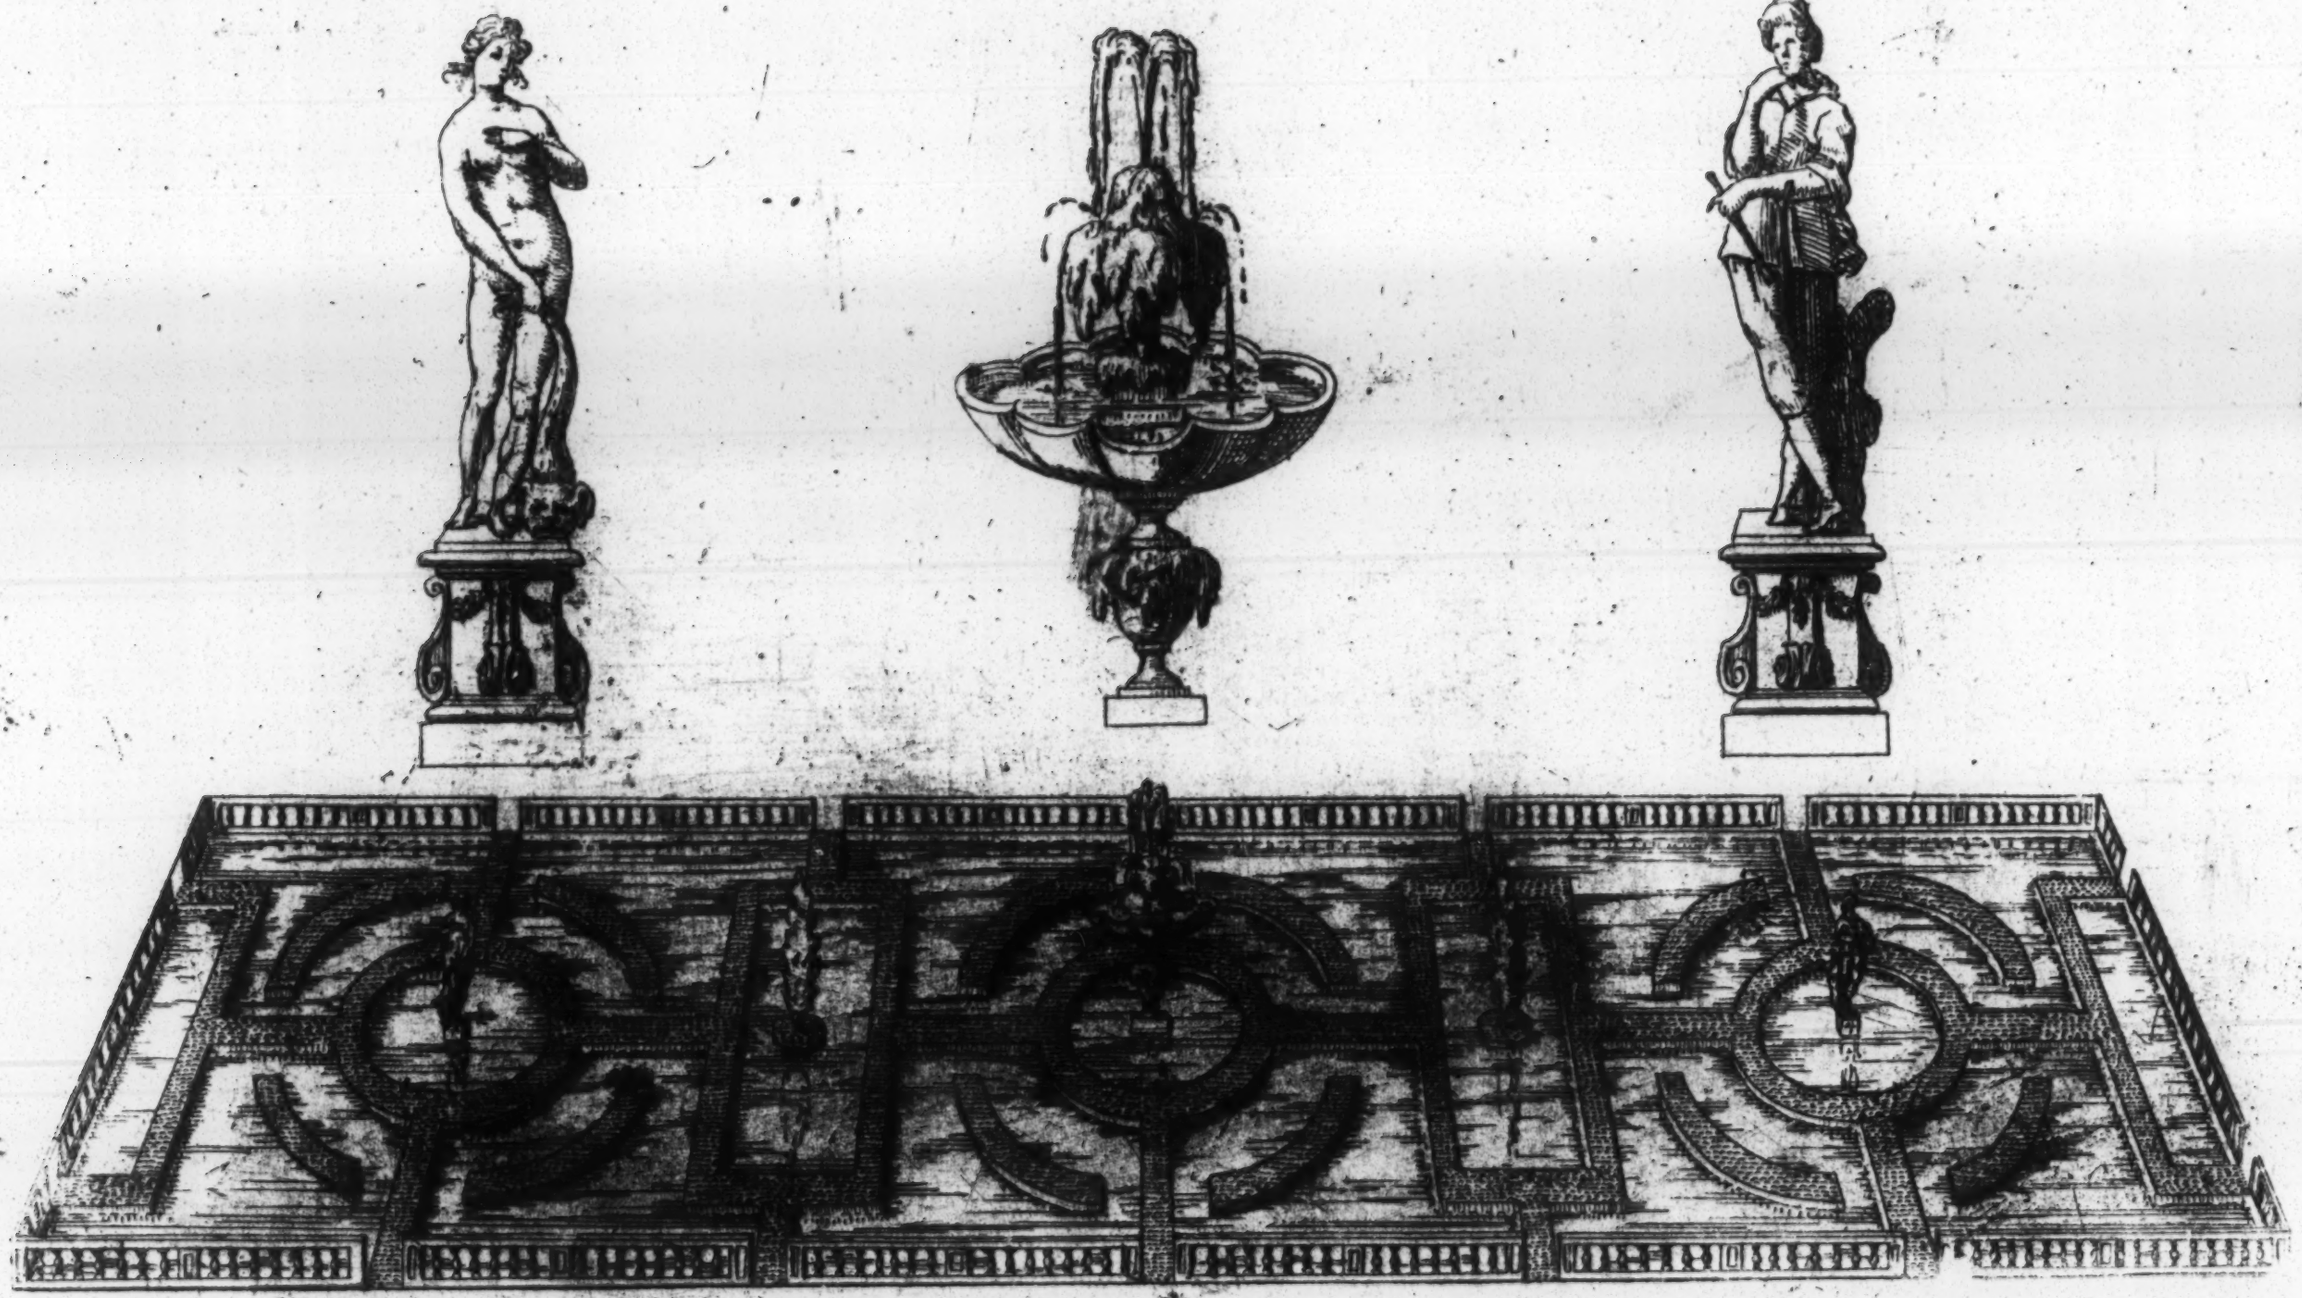


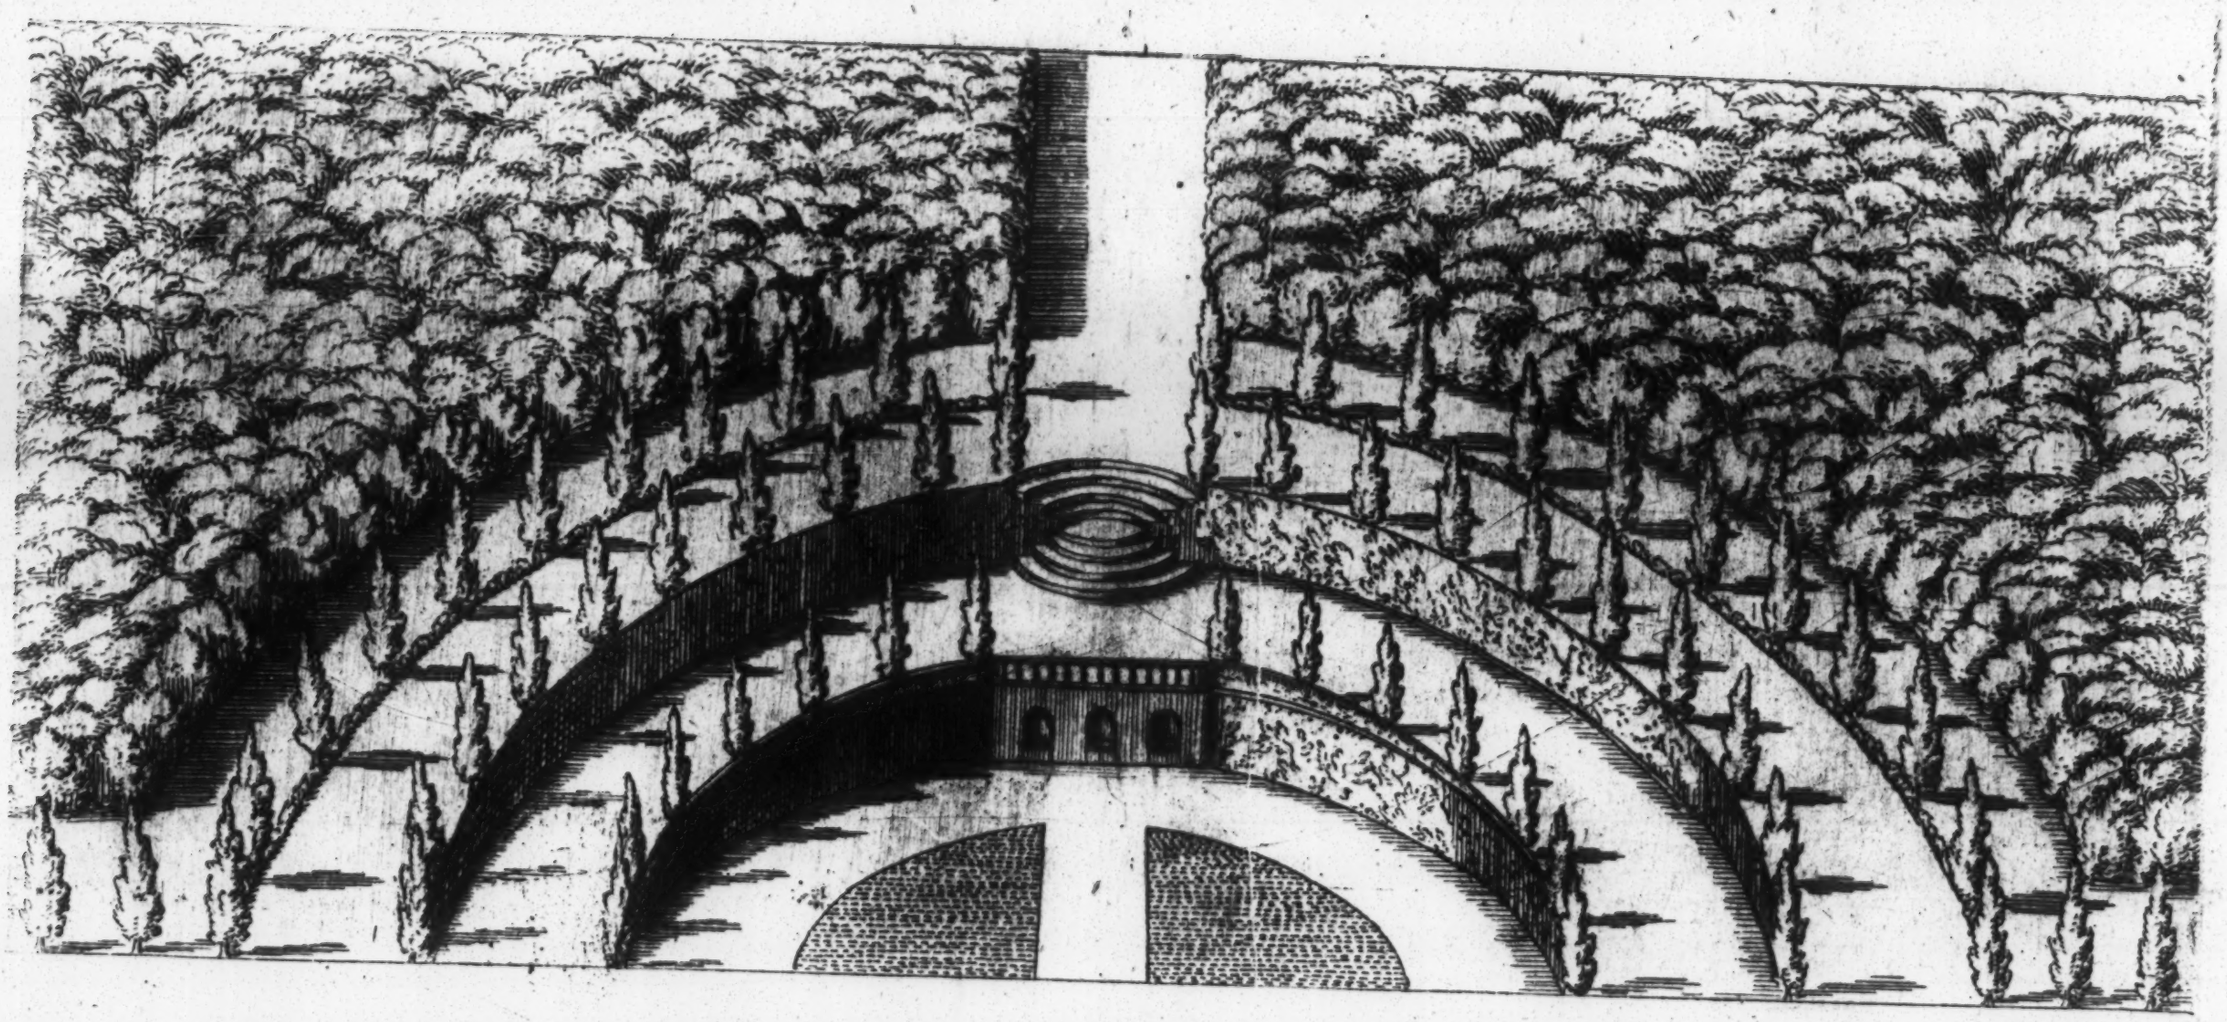












This Garden within the enclosure of the New wall is a Thowsand foote long and about Foure hundred in breadth deuided in it's length into three long Squares or Paralellograms; the first of which diuisions next the building hath ffoure Platts, embroydered; in the midest of which are ffoure ffountaynes with Statues of marble in theire midle, and on the sides of those Platts, are the Platts of fflowers, and beyond them is the little Terras rased for the more aduantage of beholding those Platts. this for the first diuision. In the Second are two Groues or woods cutt with diuerse walkes and thorough those Groues paseth the riuer Nader haueing of breadth in this place 41 foote upon which is built the bridge of the breadth of the greate walke, in the midest of the aforesayd groues are two great Statues of white marble of eight ffoote heigth: the one of Bacchus and the other Flora and on the sides ranging with the Platts of fflowers are two couerd Arbors of 300: ffoote long and diuerse allies. att the beginin of the third and last diuision, are on either side of the great walke, two Ponds with ffountaynes and two Collumnes in the midle casting water att theire heigth which causeth the moueing and turning of two Crownes att the top of the same and beyond is a Compartiment of greene with diuerse walkes planted with cherrie trees and in the midle is the great Ouall with the Gladiator of bras the most famous Statue of all that Antiquity hath left on the sydes of this compartiment and answering the platts of fflowers and long arbours are three arbours of either side with turning Gallaryes communicating themselues one into another: att the end of the greate walke is a Portico of stone cutt and adorned with Pilasters and Nyches within which are ffigures of white Marble of 5. ffoote high of either side of the sayd portico is an ascent leading up to the terrasse upon the steps whereof instead of Ballasters are Sea Monsters casting water from one to the other from the top to the bottome and aboue the sayd portico is a great reserue of water for the Grotto. As for the Grotto and many other things the following ffigures will demonstrate each in it's place